'Sick' or 'Very Healthy'?

Sirhan Whistles Way Through Trial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "We've got a sick man there," veteran criminal attorney Russell E. Parsons said of his client, Sirhan Bishara Sirhan. "I treat him as such."

An observer hardly would guess the gaunt young Jordanian is on trial for his life.

In court, charged with murdering Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, he often smiles as though delighted with some private joke.

His darting brown eyes appraise his skirted news-women and other courtroom visitors. To a defense investigator visiting his cell he expressed the wish that a particularly striking blonde reporter would smile at him amid "all those deadpan faces."

"He likes all women," says the investigator, Michael McCowan. "He has a very healthy attitude."

The trial entered its fifth week today. Selection of six alternate jurors was expected to be completed, followed by opening arguments and launching of the prosecution's case.

Sirhan smiled at a courtroom artist's sketches of him, relayed through the investigator. During a recess he whistled as he entered a security room adjoining the court.

At the moment that a prosecutor was asking a prospective alternate juror if he could vote "death in the gas chamber," Sirhan was smiling and whispering eagerly into Parsons' ear.

"Down" periods come when he sits quietly and listens solemn-faced to the drone of questions from judge and attorneys to prospective alternate jurors.

Said his brother Munir, 21, "He's anxious to get rolling" that is, for testimony to start.

Said his tiny mother Mary, 55, "Sometimes he is depressed, sometimes not, just as any other man would be."

Once a week or oftener, family members and Parsons visit Sirhan in his heavily guarded cell five floors above the eighth-floor courtroom in the hall of justice.

Defense questions of jury candidates have made clear that the defense will be diminished capacity. The contention is that a man can be sane yet, because of the state of his mind, have diminished responsibility for a violent act.

The defense admits Sirhan fired the pistol shots that felled Kennedy early last June 5 at the Ambassador Hotel during celebration of his victory in California's Democratic presidential primary. The issue will be Sirhan's state of mind at the time.

Psychiatrists and psychologists will be called.

Parsons and investigator McCowan gave these other glimpses of the Sirhan on trial:

He smokes five or six packages of cigarettes a day—fewer on trial days. He recently switched from cigars, which he took up earlier in jail.

After a day in court he sits reading books on history, the Middle East and the Arab-Israel problem.

His weight is about the same as when he was arrested eight months ago—110 pounds. He's pale, said Parsons, because "he hasn't seen the sun in all that time."

Thousands Stranded At Airport

NEW YORK (AP) — New York was crippled and cut off from its suburbs this morning in the wake of a storm that dumped 15 inches of snow, piled into drifts whipped by high winds.

The New York and American stock exchanges closed.

The Long Island Railroad shut down, cutting off 90,000 commuters. The Penn Central and New Haven railroads drastically cut schedules, and buses were mired in huge traffic jams caused by stalled and deserted vehicles.

The State Thruway was closed from Albany to New York City—148 miles—for the first time in its history, and more than 1,000 cars were stranded on the Tappan Zee Bridge, a thruway span across the Hudson River at Tarrytown. The passengers took shelter locally.

Subways were running near normal. All public and parochial schools and colleges were closed, as were all branches of the public library.

Airports Closed

Kennedy International, La Guardia and Newark airports were closed. More than 6,000 persons were stranded at Kennedy, where food supplies were being rapidly exhausted. Roads to the airport were blocked by stalled vehicles. One jetliner with 39 passengers was snowbound on a runway for nine hours Sunday before plows could free it.

A National Airlines spokesman appealed today for a helicopter flight to bring food to Kennedy Airport.

About 500 of the stranded passengers were at the National terminal.

"They haven't eaten any food since 8:30 p.m. yesterday," a National spokesman said.

He said the group included about 30 children, two diabetics and one man with a heart condition.

"If they don't get food soon they'll be in bad shape," he said. "If someone could drop some food from a helicopter, it would be great."

Pan American served coffee and juices at its terminal building, but apparently Trans World Airlines was the only line able to serve complete breakfasts. A TWA spokesman said they served approximately 2,000 persons.

Port Authority police reported giving aid to several persons who suffered heart attacks and to one person who suffered an ulcer attack.

Thirteen of New York City's 15 inches of snow fell Sunday, designed to carry up to 490 passengers flew for the first time Sunday and but for a single flaw, its pilot called the test trip "absolutely ideal."

"It's a pilot's dream it flies like an arrow," declared pilot Jack Waddell, 45, as he stepped from the cockpit of the $20 million, 355-ton prototype of the new fleet of superjets.

The flaw—an improperly aligned wing flap—forced the jet to return to Paine Field here after 1 hour, 15 minutes of a scheduled 2½-hour flight. The

Big Arms Cache Found

SAIGON (AP) — Fifty monster rockets that one American adviser said could "raise hell" in Saigon have been found only one day's travel from the capital. They were part of one of the biggest enemy rocket stockpiles uncovered in the war.

Military spokesmen said the warheads probably had been improvised at arms factories in Cambodia and were hauled into South Vietnam on bicycles. Seventy bicycles were found with the rockets.

The 3rd Vietnamese Marine Battalion launched a sweep operation in War Zone C last Friday, transported into the enemy's backyard by American helicopters. They clashed with North Vietnamese troops several times during the weekend, killing at least 20 and capturing an engineering officer described by one marine officer as "obviously a very important man in this setup."

U.S. troops on patrol over the weekend found four other big munitions and food stockpiles, three of them in the Saigon area.

They speculated the big rockets were to be fired from crude launchers that would limit them to a range of one to four miles. The 122mm rockets have a range of seven miles.

The spokesmen said the 240mm warheads could carry 100 pounds of explosives, compared to 1½ pounds in the 122mm rockets. Thus the 50 rockets had a total punch of 5,000 pounds of explosives, or one-twelfth of the average bomb load of a U.S. B52 bomber.

South Vietnamese marines found the new type rockets in a 30-ton munitions cache in 34 man-made caves in War Zone C, 60 miles north of Saigon and 18 miles from the Cambodian border.

The cache also contained 500 122mm and 107mm rockets; six launchers for the 240mm missiles; 15 antiaircraft machine guns; 42 mortar tubes; 309 rifles; 10 tons of various small arms ammunition; three tons of rice; 2,000 uniforms; 500 field packs and some smaller bazooka-type rocket launchers. The rockets alone weighed 15 tons.

Enough for 2 Regiments

A South Vietnamese spokesman said the find definitely helped to "neutralize the enemy's offensive capability" for an attack on Saigon during the holiday season before and after the lunar new year on Feb. 17.

The spokesman said the heavy weapons and ammunition, new and still in protective wrappers, were enough to equip two full North Vietnamese regiments of 3,000 men each.

"We can only assume that it was all stockpiled for a Tet offensive on Saigon," he said. "This was a staging area."

Routine U. S. Mission

Russian Trawlers Near Launch Site

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — Nearly 100 Soviet-bloc trawlers dragged their nets off the Virginia coast today, some less than 20 miles from the Wallops Island rocket center where a routine meteorological launch was planned tonight.

Worsening weather raised the prospect of problems, however, for both the launch and the trawlers, which during the night rode 10-foot seas and 40-mile-an-hour winds under the watch of two Coast Guard cutters.

Most of the fleet was amid schools of cod and sea bass from 25 to 45 miles off the entrance to Hampton Roads, one of the largest naval installations on the East Coast.

The remainder, nine trawlers and the 600-foot factory ship Pomorze, were 60 miles to the north, 18 miles off Wallops and just south of the Maryland line. It was off Wallops and neighboring Chincoteague Islands that the trawlers first appeared last Thursday, growing first to a dozen, then to 50 or more by the weekend.

Coast Guard spotters, airborne on Saturday, said 20 of the vessels approached within 10 miles of Wallops, violating the 12-mile coastal fishing zone claimed by the United States.

All fled back to sea before the cutter Point Arena arrived but were warned that further violations would be boarded and seized.

The 82-foot cutter carried only an 11-man crew and an 80mm mortar. The Pomorze and four other Soviet "mother" ships of the fleet are more than six times her size.

West's Big 3 Balk At Red Travel Ban

W. German Officials to be Flown To W. Berlin Due to East's Edict

BONN (AP) — The three Western allies declared today there is no justification for East Germany to impose restrictions on surface routes to West Berlin.

The East German restrictions are aimed at members of the West German Federal Assembly who will elect a new federal president in Berlin March 5.

The electors are expected to fly to the Communist-encircled city in order to evade the new restrictions.

The United States, Britain and France noted in a joint statement that the assembly had met on three previous occasions in West Berlin.

"The three governments consequently hold that there is no justification for the East German announcement on Feb. 8," the statement said.

"This announcement is more over inconsistent with the fact that the Soviet Union, not East Germany, is responsible for free and unhindered access to persons and goods to Berlin. The three governments have in the past reminded the Soviet Union of this responsibility. Their position has not changed."

The statement said the West German decision to hold the presidential election in West Berlin was taken "after due consultation with the three powers within the framework of their responsibilities for Berlin."

ADN, the East German news agency, said Sunday the restrictions become effective Feb. 15. It made no mention of the air links to West Berlin, 110 miles inside East Germany, since the air lanes are controlled by the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union, the four postwar occupation powers.

The ban affects the 1,036 delegates to the Federal Assembly, about 300 aides and assistants and all members of the West German armed forces. The assembly is to elect a successor to West German President Heinrich Lübke, who is retiring.

The West German government denounced the travel ban as "aggressive and peace-disrupting," a new violation of international law. A Bonn spokesman said: "The federal government is determined, together with its allies, to take all necessary measures to strengthen the viability of Berlin."

Mayor Klaus Schuezel of West Berlin called the ban serious but said: "There is no basis for hysteria."

In Washington, Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said it was "not a matter directly concerning" the United States. However, President Nixon is scheduled to visit West Berlin Feb. 27 and could find himself in the middle of a noisy confrontation.

West Germany holds its presidential election and certain other governmental events in West Berlin to demonstrate the Bonn government's contention that the former German capital is a West German state. The East Germans usually complain about this and frequently think up some retaliatory measure, like the travel ban to underline their contention that West Berlin has a special territorial status and is not part of West Germany.

Officials of the West German government already travel to Berlin by air because the East Germans barred all leading officials of the Bonn regime last April from making the trip by road or rail.

West Berlin police and customs officers at Helmstedt, a chief border checkpoint, reported that the East Germans were giving passports closer scrutiny and delaying motorists as much as three hours.

Nixon, Sihanouk Exchange Notes

Cambodia Hints at Restoring U.S. Ties

JAKARTA (AP) — Cambodia's foreign minister said today President Nixon and the Cambodian chief of state, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, have exchanged letters concerning the possibility of restoring diplomatic relations between their countries.

The minister, Prince Norodom Phurissara, said Prince Sihanouk answered a letter from Nixon on the matter.

Prince Phurissara gave no details of the letters but reiterated his government's position that Cambodia will only consider a restoration of diplomatic relations if the United States "recognizes and respects" Cambodia's borders and territorial integrity.

"There is always the possibility that relations will be restored," he added without elaboration.

At the preliminary hearing, Russo testified he overheard the plotting during a party at Ferrie's apartment in September 1963. He said he had taken a girl named Sandra Moffett with him to the party.

Boeing 747 Airliner

Superjet Flies 'Like a Dream'

EVERETT, Wash. (AP) —

The huge Boeing 747 jet airliner designed to carry up to 490 passengers flew for the first time Sunday and but for a single flaw, its pilot called the test trip "absolutely ideal."

"It's a pilot's dream it flies like an arrow," declared pilot Jack Waddell, 45, as he stepped from the cockpit of the $20 million, 355-ton prototype of the new fleet of superjets.

The flaw—an improperly aligned wing flap—forced the jet to return to Paine Field here after 1 hour, 15 minutes of a scheduled 2½-hour flight. The trouble was discovered 34 minutes into the flight.

The faulty flap—termed later by Waddell as a "minor discrepancy"—was discovered by Flight Engineer Jess Wallick about the same time Waddell radioed feeling "a bump" during tests of the wing control system.

Waddell said he hoped the second flight could be held within a day or two.

The 747 is about 2½ times larger than the biggest jetliners now in service, capable of flying 6,000 miles nonstop at a cruising speed of 625 miles per hour.

Its dimensions are massive—tipped on end it equals a 20-story building—and its four giant engines are amazingly quiet and smoke-free.

As Waddell applied conservative throttle, the jet appeared to lumber painfully along the runway looking deceptively slow for its takeoff speed of 196 m.p.h.

On takeoff and landing it appeared to hover gracefully like a kite rather than streak tails of the party until a hypno-

Repeated Violations

Prince Sihanouk has charged U.S. and South Vietnamese forces with repeated violations of his borders and attacks on Cambodian villages causing deaths and injuries among the Cambodians. The United States has admitted some of the border violations but said all have been in error and usually the result of pursuit of Viet Cong forces taking sanctuary in Cambodia.

Cambodia severed diplomatic relations with the United States in May 1965 after rejecting U.S. economic and military aid in November 1963.

In 1951, she entered the University of Michigan, where she studied cello with Oliver Edel, a member of the Stanley Quartet. She was graduated in 1955 with a Mus. B. degree and was awarded the Stanley Medal, the School of Music's highest honor, for outstanding performance and musicianship. She later earned a Mus. M. degree at the University of Iowa.

Property Owner's Tax Cut Because Of Nude Games

ASHTON-IN-MAKER-FIELD, England (AP) — Engineer Frank Davis, 26, demanded that the local tax court cut his property tax because nude football games and bawdy songs next door reduced the value of his house.

Frank's house adjoins the field and clubhouse of Ashton's town football club.

"It's not uncommon for high spirited players to practice nude," he told the court. "Some don't even wear football boots."

And after practice came the singing from the dressing room. "I'm no prude," Davis continued, "but these songs are not the sort of thing you want to hear when sitting in your living room."

He played a tape recording to illustrate, and the court cut his tax from $151.20 to $144.

The club secretary, Derek Mycock, said later: "It's in the rules that members must not misbehave. I shall make sure the team stands by it."

5 Teen-Agers Want to Help Drug Program

Appleton Students Concerned About Narcotics Education

"Marijuana's not the problem in Appleton—it's the hard drugs."

"There are many (pushers) and there are minor dealers."

"There are more dealers than you'd think."

The speakers were five Appleton teen-agers trying to find ways to explore the problems of narcotics use. Three admitted trying LSD. One had used "speed."

They want to help Dr. Darold Treffert, superintendent of Winnebago State Hospital, to plan a pilot program of drug education for Appleton.

Committee Formed

Last week a 17-man steering committee was named to outline a narcotics education program. Dr. Dr. Treffert proposed the program as chairman of the state medical society committee on narcotics and alcoholism.

Three of the five students said they would work with adults on a committee in the narcotics education program.

"I have used LSD just once and I'm not ever going to try it again. To me it was hell, it really was. My mind was gone," said one girl.

"What I expected was not what I got. I don't think you could ever legalize LSD," said a second girl.

A third student said she had refused to try the drug because "I've never felt secure" and feared the drug.

Unborn Children

She added that using LSD may affect unborn children, saying, "you're taking their lives into your hands" when using the narcotic.

A youth who had tried "acid" said he was immediately sorry he had taken it and that it scared him when it effected him three hours later. "I would jump at the chance to address a junior high group to tell pupils about drugs," he said.

Honest discussions and education were the teen-agers' answer to the narcotics problem.

"If you're not educated on it, you will face a problem. When you get educated it's a start," said one girl.

Each said any narcotics program must present an honest appraisal of the drug problem. "You want to see something that's real," explained one.

Problems Class

"It could be brought into a modern problems class," suggested one. Another said government studies about narcotics should be made available to students.

Lyciums where former users could discuss both good and bad effects of drugs were suggested. One said civic clubs should be told about the problem.

The students also suggested a

Try Experiments With a Pair of Alternating, Swinging, Bells

BY CAPPY DICK

I call this fun-project "The Alternating Bells." Make a pair and you will see that one bell stops swinging when the other one begins.

All you need for this project are two jingle bells such as those used at Christmas time, two pieces of thread of equal length and a piece of string to suspend between the sides of a doorway.

Place the string across the doorway, fastening each end with a thumbtack. Let there be some sag in it. Next, tie a two-foot length of thread to each bell. Tie one thread to the string center. Tie the other thread to the string an equal distance from the center on the other side. The arrangement will now look like figure 1. You must be very sure the bells hang down an equal distance.

You are now ready to start the experiment. Pull back one of the bells as the boy is doing in figure 3 and let go of it so it swings forward in an arc (figure 2). In a twinkling you will see the second bell begin to swing a little, then it will swing wider and wider as the first bell slows down and finally stops swinging entirely. Very soon you will see the second bell slow down and the first one will start swinging again. This action is lots of fun to watch. Count the number of times a bell will swing before it stops and the other starts.

PROGRESS REPORT

OF THE FOX RIVER VALLEY

Soloists Are Praised Symphony Concert Has Many Fine Moments

BY ROBERT BELOW

Istvan Jaray led the Fox Valley Symphony in the second concert of this, its fourth season, Sunday night in Lawrence Memorial Chapel. The program was probably the most demanding of any the orchestra has presented thus far. Because I was unable to attend the first concert last November, I cannot compare its playing then with Sunday's concert. But this time there was no soloist; the orchestra was entirely on its own, and each piece posed impressive difficulties.

Jaray seems to be trying to stretch the abilities of his players, individually and collectively. His program, oriented towards the 19th century in style, provided plenty of hurdles to leap, and not all were successfully negotiated. But this is the way an orchestra learns and improves.

Controlled Climaxes

Much has already been achieved. Most notably, climaxes are better controlled than ever before, with the strings holding their own. And the strings, when in mass, are richer in sound and display greater precision than formerly, although in less full passages there are shaky moments.

Weber's Overture to "Der Freischütz" was the opener, followed by "The White Peacock" by Charles Griffes, and "The Good Soldier Schweik" Suite I by Robert Kurka.

The latter, composed by a young American, featured the wind section by itself (with kettle and snare drums), and while the piece contains more of entertainment than of strength, it provided a good contrast to the rest of the program in style, sonority and spirit. It was a fun piece.

Tchaikovsky's Sixth Symphony, which formed the second half of the program, isn't a fun piece at all. It is possibly the most challenging single work the Fox Valley Symphony has attempted. It sprawls, is long and arduous, and its orchestration is frequently clumsy. It is loaded with problems of

$2 Million Owed By Drug Firms

MADISON (AP) — Wisconsin will get about $2 million from a treble - damage anti-trust suit against five antibiotics manufacturers, Atty. Gen. Robert W. Warren said Friday.

The settlement, part of a nationwide $100 million package, is subject to approval of Gov. Warren P. Knowles, who authorized the state's case.

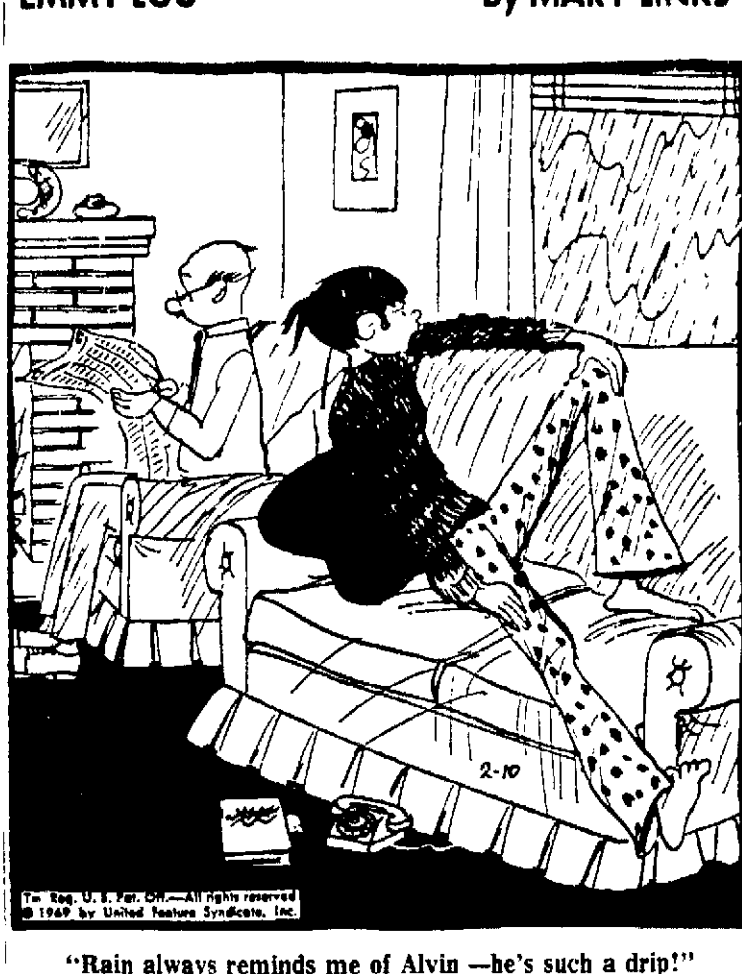

About half the money will be returned to tax-supported hospitals, Warren said, and about $200,000 will be returned to local government units which reimbursed welfare recipients for buying the products.

The remaining $800,000 will be placed in a fund. Citizens who can prove they purchased the companies' products between November, 1953, and November, 1966, may make claims upon the fund.

The firms include American Cyanamid, Bristol Myers and Charles Pfizer and Co.

Two other firms, Upjohn Co. and Squibb - Bechmut, were named in the suit but were not convicted.

Career Information Sources Listed in Book for Students

BY MARY FEELEY

Consultant in Money Management

Money's not the only sticky problem the high school student faces when he reaches his junior year and makes plans for college. Money isn't that hard to come by these days — not with all the financing available for higher education via federal and state loans, private scholarships and school loan-aid appropriations.

It's the motivation, not the money, that's often missing. Many young people simply don't know, at age 16 or 17, what they want to do in life. So what study courses will mean anything in the long run? Why waste four years fumbling around in classrooms, some of them think, then they could be earning money instead?

Enormous pressure is put on young people today to go to college — any college. Families start the propaganda before a child has finished elementary school. And while I say more power to them for urging higher education, which both enriches the mind and ups earning capacity, I wonder if more emphasis shouldn't be put earlier on helping the young clarify their aims in life.

We all know a lot of adults who still haven't figured out what they really want to do — or suddenly change careers in their mid 40s or 50s because some inner urge finally works its way to the surface. So pinpointing a target and heading straight for it is no easy matter at any age. For the mid-teens, it can be infinitely confusing.

Detailed Listing

I believe both parents and high school juniors could get a lot of help out of the 128 pages of the American Legion's handbook entitled "Need A Lift?" It has been updated for 1969, and the chapter on "Sources of Career Information" alone is worth many times the 25-cents cost. The book is practically a dictionary, with detailed listings, by states and organizations, of the financial benefits available to the student, as well as descriptions of scholarships offered to children of both veterans and nonveterans. Since nearly every one of the thousands upon thousands of educational aids offered today can be listed here, references given help the reader locate almost all existing sources of aid except those at the local community level.

However, it's the 13-page section on career information I'm most concerned with. In an alphabetical listing of types of careers — ranging from auto mechanics, civil engineering, construction, dentistry, marketing, music, law, to hospital administration, F.B.I., and any others you could think of — the reader is told to whom, and where, to write for helpful information in the various fields. The information includes suggestions on where to study, courses to select, job opportunities, pay, etc. The sources supplying all this on request are the pros themselves.

The book also suggests that, in addition to seeking the help of the student's guidance counselor or principal in trying to clarify his aims in life, he try to talk personally with someone active in a field in which he might conceivably be interested.

"If such a person is not known personally by the student," the Legion handbook says, "we are sure that among the members of the American Legion Post or the American Legion Auxiliary Unit in the community, almost every field of endeavor will be represented. If the student will contact the local Legion Post, its education and scholarship chairman will be happy to refer him to a member who can assist him in his planning."

Evidently these aren't just idle words. A mother in Ohio was telling me recently, with enthusiasm and gratitude, how her own young son had "found himself" after talks with one such pro who was able to understand his problem, speak his language and give him practical advice on how to plan.

You can send for a copy of "Need A Lift?", enclosing 25 cents, to The American Legion, Dept. S.P.O. Box 1055, Indianapolis, Inc., 46206.

Blind Attend Make-Up Classes at New York

By DEE WEDEMEYER

NEW YORK (AP) — For the first time in her life, Ruth Askenas, blind since the age of 3, applied makeup with a sable brush.

By touch, the same way she learned to read, Miss Askenas, knew just the right amount of rouge to give her freckled cheeks a rosy glow.

"How's that?" the grey-haired woman asked her makeup teachers.

The teachers—volunteers at a new beauty training center which opened Tuesday, in the New York Association for the Blind, the Lighthouse—gave their approval and the tiny, blind woman slid out of the swivel chair, smiling brightly.

Lives Alone

"You wonder if you are presentable," she explained. "I live alone. I have no one to ask and of course, I can't see the mirror."

Like most women, Miss Askenas has a curiosity to try the new products she hears advertised and she wants to spruce up her simple pixie hair cut, a seemingly inevitable style for the blind.

Until the training center opened, Miss Askenas could go to a beauty salon to have her hair or make up done but she had no way of learning how to do it herself.

Where the training will be especially helpful is with the partially blind or those who have lost their sight most recently and find themselves suddenly unable to apply makeup competently and feel their coiffures are dated.

Stopped Using Rouge

"My son walked in one day and said, 'Ma, you look like a clown,'" recalled a woman who began losing her sight five years ago. "So I stopped using rouge—by the time I could see it, it was too much."

Now with her vision reduced to only blurred outline, the woman, Catherine di Frenze, a Queens housewife, is learning to use rouge and eye makeup again by touch.

Mrs. di Frenze can maneuver well enough that her sightlessness goes undetected but she is self-conscious about her hair-style.

"I'm of the old school with the pin curls," said Mrs. di Frenze. "I never learned how to put in rollers."

"I don't know if I will go totally blind, but you have to be self-sufficient," she said reaching for a roller. "I think I can do it myself now."

Sew Own Covers

An old bathroom mat or rug can be cut to fit an electric floor or shoe polisher. Just stitch a channel to run elastic through: slip the new cover over the polisher's old felt or bristle pads. The soft fabric pile will absorb excess wax and provide a smooth and even shine to floors, cabinets, paneling and shoes. These covers are easy to remove after each use to be machine-laundered in hot suds, always ready for reuse.

Never a Dull Day, Says Woman Pawnbroker

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Mrs. Ruby Widom has no regrets that she didn't take friends' advice to open up a "nice little dress shop."

She is Denver's only full-time woman pawnbroker—has been since the death in 1958 of her husband, Morrie, who left her his shop.

"Here, every single thing is different every day," Mrs. Widom, mother of two daughters, said in her spick and span shop.

Mrs. Widom has a pet peeve. "Many people think stolen merchandise goes immediately to a pawnshop."

"If you have any idea something is stolen, you let it go. Nobody wants to be bothered with the fuss that goes with it."

Mrs. Widom said a pawnshop represents "financing and banking for the little people."

"People with enough financing, people who don't really need money, can go to a bank and get it," she said. "But what about the little person who can't make his money stretch, who needs $5 or $25 to meet a debt?"

She estimates that about 80 per cent of her customers redeem the articles they pawn, usually within a month.

Her most unusual sale? She sold rhinestones to a man who intended to decorate his horse's bridle and head stall.

Treatment Shrinks Piles, Relieves Pain In Most Cases

Louisville, Ky. Mrs. Hugh Williams of Louisville writes: "A good person recommended Preparation H to me and such help I can't describe. I don't know what in the world I'd do without it!"

(Note: Doctors have proved in most cases—Preparation H® actually shrinks inflamed hemorrhoids. In case after case, the sufferer first notices prompt relief from pain, burning and itching. Then swelling is gently reduced. There's no other formula for the treatment of hemorrhoids like doctor-tested Preparation H. It also lubricates to make bowel movements more comfortable, soothes irritated tissues and helps prevent further infection. In ointment or suppository form.)

Wear Your 'Heart' on Your Sleeve

You can wear your heart on your sleeve — or send it to your loved one — or use it to decorate a gift apron, a handkerchief or a set of placemats. How? The answer is simple: cut bright red hearts from the material you iron-on for mending. It comes in delightfully bright red fabric, just the right size for this project.

Everyone has made valentine hearts by folding red paper in half and cutting out a half-heart that is no longer half-hearted when the paper is opened out — but a full-fledged heart. And just think of all the delightful things you can do with an iron-on permanent fabric valentine heart.

You can even make a game of heart finding. Iron a heart onto one — or several — handkerchiefs. Hide and let the family hunt. The finder receives a reward.

The Angel of Chicago's Skid Row

By RICHARD CICCONE

CHICAGO (AP) — There is one Joy on Skid Row.

She is Joy Shafer, 24, a pretty, blonde nurse who bandages "wiresores," passes out pills to curb the shakes, orders medical help for those who want it, and tries to offer hope to men who have none.

"She's an angel," said a white-haired man standing outside a cheap saloon.

Each morning Joy gets off the commuter train among the sparkling glass and steel towers downtown. She walks down West Madison Street three blocks to the Salvation Army clinic where she works 10 hours a day.

Mad at Businessmen

Many of the men wave to her. Some try to bum the price of a drink. She always refuses.

"I get so mad at the businessmen downtown who give them money," she said.

brick building, a dozen men wait in an outer room.

Joy and her assistant, Karen Dudenhofer, 24, sort out the ailments. Mrs. Dudenhofer calls men who need fresh bandages Joy handles the colds, coughs and shakes.

"Jerry, you sit on the stool," Joy orders.

An unshaven man in his 40s turns away and mutters, "I'm relying on you . . . my leg . . . I needed an excuse. I been walking the street all night I'm cold."

Sent to Basement

"When did you have your last drink?"

"I had nothing for eight hours."

"If I give you pills for your nerves you have to sit in the basement. All right?"

Jerry stumbles through a doorway and heads across the street to the Salvation Army mission. A mild tranquilizer will be sent to the desk clerk. Jerry gets a pill as long as he stays in the basement.

"It's the only detoxification center we have," Joy explained. "It's not nice, but it's warm and the only sure way to make them stop drinking while they're taking pills."

The men in the examination room sit on 12 metal chairs. Half of them roll up a trouser leg to expose open sores and discolored skin.

Daughter of Minister

"The sores—some people call them wine sores—are initiated by drinking," Karen said.

"They get a rash and they scratch it. Or a cut not taken care of . . . their nutrition is so low they don't heal."

Examinations go on all morning and through the afternoon. Some patients are on a rehabilitation program.

"I ain't had a drink since Christmas Eve, Joy."

"A man can do anything he wants," she answered, "if he wants to do it bad enough. Maybe with the help of God."

Joy is the daughter of a Dayton, Ohio, minister. She attended nursing school in Chicago and spent a year at the Moody Bible Institute's course in missionary nursing.

Men 'Too Moral'

"We're only here to give them medical help but I try to make them think. I don't believe in the 'you need to repent!' kind of thing. Some guys don't want to get out of here. Some men have nothing to give up drinking. I don't encourage them to give it up."

Joy has no fear of working with drunks.

"I've only been attacked once and that was probably my fault. I slapped a man to bring him out of a seizure. It took six policemen to control him."

"I'm not afraid of walking through here every night. Partly, because the guys protect me. Second, there are no submoral men here. If anything, these guys are probably alcoholics because they're too moral. They think too much."

Worst Experience

Joy has been at the clinic since 1967. Her worst experience happened last week.

"A man died here. Right there," she said. "He was a lawyer. He always came in to talk to me. Sometimes I had no time and I'd tell him to go away. He was reaching out for something or someone."

"He was very scared when he died. I didn't know what to say to him in those last few minutes. I told him God loved him. I wish I had said something to him all those other times."

Girl Scout Leaders Prepare For 1969 Cookie Campaign

It's Girl Scout cookie time again. The annual money-raising project for the scouts is set from Feb. 27 through March 10. Girl Scouts, Cadettes, Juniors and Seniors will call on residents of the area to take advance orders for Girl Scout cookies. Deliveries will be made the week of April 16 to 25.

Five varieties—fudge, mints, scot-leas, Savannahs and sandwich cremes—will be offered this year. Purchase of the cookies helps the Scouts build their camping program by providing funds for capital expenditures, keeping fees at a minimum, providing funds for maintenance and repair and providing camperships for many girls who otherwise could not go to camp.

Cookie chairmen from the Fox River Area Council met Thursday at the Left Guard Charcoal House to launch the 1969 campaign in the area. Packets of material, information and sample cookies were given to the cookie chairmen.

Chairman for the council is Mrs. Loyal Wichman. Mrs. James DeGroot is Appleton chairman.

The annual cookie sale is the only area-wide project in which all of the Scouts in the Fox River Area Council have an opportunity to contribute to the support of their own program.

Your Problems

Woman Must Accept Some Responsibility

BY ANN LANDERS 8 pt sky
DEAR ANN LANDERS: May I ask the woman who complained about being married to a "dead battery" for 20 years if she believes batteries go dead all of a sudden or does someone turn off the switch?

How many married women are so "ladylike" that they wouldn't dream of letting their husbands know they are not only interested but eager? How many wives believe it is vulgar to be an active participant? And the sorriest ones of all are the passive number who are afraid to demonstrate any degree of expertise for fear their husbands will think they've been practicing.

Any woman who describes her husband as a dead battery must accept some responsibility for the loss of current. Please tell the girls there are two poles to every battery and both must function or the power goes off. —Topeka

Dear Topeka: You speak the truth, Lady—, and I assume you are a lady and not a gent. That bit about the expertise was the tipoff. I hope your letter helps to charge a few thousand batteries around the country.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We are a group of high school students who respect your opinion and want to know if we are wrong.

A member of our class died last week and we all felt very sad about it. A group of us went to the principal's office and asked to be excused from school an hour early to attend the funeral. The principal told us it was up to the Board of Education.

Landers

tion to grant such permission and that he had no such authority.

We called the Board of Education and spoke with the Superintendent of Schools. He told us the decision rests with the head of the administration of the school — in other words, the principal.

That same week several students were dismissed early to see a play downtown. It's a pretty rotten world when students can't leave school to attend funeral services for a friend, but can be excused to see a play.

What do you think of this, Ann Landers? — Disgruntled Students

Dear Students: I'm shocked and suspicious. Your letter comes from Buffalo. When I visited Buffalo a few years ago I was impressed with not only the students but the faculty and administration of the high schools I visited. You do not say whether you went back to the principal and reported your conversation with the superintendent, nor do you say whether or not you finally attended the services.

Send me the name of your school and the principal. It will add credibility to your story.

If you have trouble getting along with your parents... if you can't get them to let you live your own life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged by Parents? How to Get More Freedom." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

For 71 Years She's Been His Valentine

OGDENSBURG — Mr. and Mrs. Cecil T. Hopkins, Ogdenburg, ages 94 and 91, respectively, will mark their 71st anniversary Tuesday. The couple was married Feb. 11, 1898, in Amherst.

Mr. Hopkins was engaged in farming most of his married life but during his youth worked at a variety of jobs including railroad work, caring for horses, cutting wood and clerking in stores.

Mrs. Hopkins taught school in the old Terrior district near Ogdenburg. At that time, she also did other her own school janitor work all for $20 per month.

Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins attribute their long and successful marriage to always being considerate of each other. A sense of humor has been part of this.

They still enjoy kidding each other and laughing together.

They spend their days doing their own housework, reading and watching television and love to have friends drop in for a visit.

The couple has three children: Wayne, at home, and Clair and Ralph, who both reside in California. They have six grandchildren.

Sheinwold Disregard Advice Of Mother

BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD

"If you want to be a proper English gentleman," my mother used to tell me, "draw trumps at your very first opportunity." But my mother was not a very good bridge player, and I decided to disregard her advice when we came to live in the United States. I've given my own children different advice: If the hand looks at all difficult, don't be in a hurry to draw trumps.

In today's hands, for example, my mother would have been down two. She would win the first trick with the ace of hearts, draw three rounds of trumps with an air of conscious virtue, and then would quietly lose two hearts, a club and two diamonds. "Bad luck," she would sigh, and she would go on to the next hand with undiminished courage.

If you want to play such hands more successfully, I suggest that you use more judgment than courage. Count your losers before embarking on the play of the hand, and note that you are threatened with the loss of two hearts. You can avoid losing tricks if you ruff your low hearts in the dummy. Obviously, you cannot do that after you have drawn dummy's trumps. You must do the ruffing first and then draw the trumps.

Proper Plan

The proper plan for the hand is to win the first trick with the ace of hearts, ruff a heart with dummy's six of spades (just in case of some weird break in hearts), return dummy's deuce of spades to your own ace, and then ruff the other low heart with dummy's nine of spades.

You return to your hand with the ace of diamonds, and only now can you afford to draw the rest of the missing trumps. You lead out the king and queen of trumps, and can then cheerfully give up one club and two diamonds.

Erase That Oil

A teen lovely writes: Like most girls of my age, I have terrible oily hair. I shampoo in the morning and by nighttime I've got a limp, dull mop. Is there anything that cuts down on oil for at least a couple of days? "Washing" is the only answer I ever get.

My Answer: Remedies that help overcome oily problems are applied both externally and internally. Like the inner girl herself, the hair responds to a high-protein and vitamin diet, with a minimum of sweets and fats; to fresh air, exercise and sleep.

External measures call for:

1. A corrective detergent, pH factor or medicated shampoo.
2. Daily brushing with a spanking clean hairbrush. Brushing distributes the oil on the scalp before it has a chance to clog pores and then trigger dandruff or other blemishes.
3. An emergency "oil eraser" in aerosol sprays. When you have no time to shampoo, these sprays give off a dry mist that absorbs excess oil and also dust. You simply spray, wait a few minutes for the oil to be absorbed, and then brush out. Results in hair that looks fresh, gleamy and swingy.
4. Until improvement comes, avoid massed hairdoes, small or tightly wound rollers and tight headgear. Let your scalp get air and sun. It has to breathe to become normal.

Is your hair a problem, Miss Teen? Then send for my leaflet, Teen Tresses, Model Type. It tells how to correct such ailments as oily hair and flaky scalp; flyaway, unmanageable, lackluster locks. Included, too, are styling tips and model grooming quickies. Committee Request

Complete Study of Airport Revenues, Costs Demanded

Outagamie County Board Airport Committee called this morning for an analysis of all airport costs and revenues, as they began to search for ways to increase revenue production.

Supv. Charles Wussow, Appleton, said he wanted "everything" on expenditures and revenues, noting many voucher summaries had not been made available to the airport committee.

He directed Charles Olson, airport manager, to gather the data in preparing for a long and complete look at revenues.

Committeemen agreed there has been a shortage of revenues; a lower rate was charged to airport users while the new airport operation was getting on its feet.

They hinted every user, including Air Wisconsin Inc., would be charged higher rates in the future. More revenues should be produced at the airport, Olson said.

With the complete financial data in hand, the committee will embark on a study to find new sources of revenue, as well as increasing present ones.

Wussow made it clear that he was unhappy that all vouchers and revenue data had not been given to the airport committee.

Olson noted the committee had not specifically asked for some information but added he would contact county Executive Secretary Alvin Woehler's office to get the data.

Wussow said the last voucher summary he had received was one for January of 1963. He brought out voucher summaries he had back to November of 1966.

He indicated that he wanted to know exactly what each construction project costs were, noting he had information on only a recent one.

There has been no significant adjustment in charges to airport users since the county relocated west of Appleton in 1965. During the budget hearings last fall, county supervisors expressed concern that the airport was not paying its way.

Airport committeemen indicated they agreed, noting that first they must get a complete financial picture.

Advisory Group To be Totally Reorganized

Federal Government Recommends Size be Cut for Efficiency

The Appleton Citizens Advisory Committee — formed two years ago with 86 members — is expected to undergo a complete reorganization in the near future, it was learned today.

Mayor George Buckley appointed the group almost two years ago to meet a requirement of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) in getting the city's workable program certified.

Basically, the committee's charge was to concentrate on urban renewal, code enforcement and other projects connected with the city's relationship to the federal government and grants.

There have been observations that the size of the group has made the committee unwieldy, resulting in a recommendation by federal officials that be scaled down to about 15 to 20 members at the most.

The prime purpose of the citizens' group is to maintain a liaison between the municipal government and residents of the community, in keeping with community development and implementation of the comprehensive plan.

Some committee members have criticized the mayor's

Hundreds of Chanting UW Pickets Call for Strike Over Demands

MADISON (AP)—Hundreds of chanting demonstrators called for a boycott of University of Wisconsin classes picketed today as police stood guard at strategic campus positions.

Classes appeared to be generally going ahead on schedule although attendance was down sharply.

Militant black and white boycott leaders carried placards urging support of a boycott. Some shouted, "On strike, shut it down."

Earlier in the day black leaders, who on Friday presented the university with 13 demands, had urged against disruption of classes.

"We want participants, not stooges," one of the speakers told a rally attended by 800 students.

Madison police chief Wilbur Emory said 200 officers were on the scene. Half were city policemen and half were Dane County deputy sheriffs.

The university administration asked for help. This came after UW officials said Sunday they would take disciplinary action against the kind of class disruption that occurred Friday when the militants presented their demands.

"The law will be enforced," Chancellor H. Edwin Young said.

Demonstrators tried Saturday to invade the fieldhouse before the Ohio State-Wisconsin basketball game.

Young said no demonstrators had asked to meet with him in connection with the black student demands.

Young criticized students who called for the university to be shut down if it did not agree to the demands.

"No one who talks about shutting down the university can convince me that the welfare of the community is more important than the welfare of the students," Young said.

Friends, Neighbors Pay Homage Big 'Thank You' for Dr. Towne

BY ROGER PITT

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

HORTONVILLE — "We'll be loving you always."

This is how a community showed its appreciation to Dr. William H. Towne for administering to the pains and ills of this area's people during an illustrious 62-year medical career.

It also was a tribute to a warm, considerate man being a neighbor, and most of all a man whom the children of a community can attempt to emulate and the adults can call friend and confidant.

Dr. Donald Bravick, chief of staff at Appleton Memorial Hospital, told the gathering that "Doc Towne" exemplified something that could disappear from the medical profession.

"Dr. Towne made medicine a personal matter with his compassion, understanding, wit and humor. The possibility exists for medicine to become a cold business," Dr. Bravick said.

Bravick said, "Dr. Towne's service enriched his own soul."

Uncommon Man

Dr. Edward Mielke, Appleton, called Dr. Towne, "An uncommon man, a leader."

"Dr. Towne was dedicated to his work. At times he should have been in a hospital bed himself, but was traveling by horse and cutter to deliver a baby," Dr. Mielke said.

"He had the gift of favorably affecting the lives of almost everyone he came in contact with," his long time friend said.

Dr. Mielke quoted Robert Louis Stevenson about "physicians being above the common herd." His question to the crowd of who was their uncommon man brought a thunderous response "Dr. Towne" from the throng.

Baby on Way

Dr. Monsted phoned a message stating he had an expectant mother who was about to deliver in two hours and he would be unable to appear.

Dr. Towne, responsible for bringing over 4,000 babies into the world during his 87 years, gave an appreciative nod as the message was read.

Monroe Manley, an acquaintance of 46 years, recalled the early years of Dr. Towne when he was stationed in Shiocton.

"What more can be said of a man than that he has patience, compassion and generosity," Manley said.

Dr. Mielke quoted Robert Louis Stevenson about "physicians being above the common herd." His question to the crowd of who was their uncommon man brought a thunderous response "Dr. Towne" from the throng.

Baby on Way

Dr. Monsted phoned a message stating he had an expectant mother who was about to deliver in two hours and he would be unable to appear.

Dr. Towne, responsible for bringing over 4,000 babies into the world during his 87 years, gave an appreciative nod as the message was read.

Monroe Manley, an acquaintance of 46 years, recalled the early years of Dr. Towne when he was stationed in Shiocton.

"What more can be said of a man than that he has patience, compassion and generosity," Manley said.

Menasha Renews Shared Time Talks

MENASHA — The board of education will tackle shared time tonight in an attempt to determine whether it should open certain courses to parochial school students.

Expected to attend the board meeting is Rev. David Kiefer, administrator of St. Mary's High School, who presented the proposal to the board several months ago.

Father Kiefer requested that Menasha senior high students attending the parochial school be allowed to enroll in courses at the high school, some of which St. Mary's does not offer.

He also suggested the same thing for Neenah students to the Neenah Board of Education, which turned down the request, and then recently decided to study it further.

Both Menasha's and Neenah's attorneys had labeled the constitutionality of the program "doubtful," while St. Mary's attorney felt that past opinions of the state had indicated the plan might be legal.

Steiger Says Welfare Ways 'Inadequate'

Representative Says Reform Measures Already Underway

OSHKOSH — Calling the federal welfare system "inadequate and outmoded," Rep. William A. Steiger told a crowd attending a county social service building dedication here Sunday that reform measures are underway in Washington.

The Oshkosh Republican congressman who serves on the House education and labor committee, was among several speakers who addressed a crowd numbering between 400 and 500 at dedication activities for the new Winnebago County Social Services Building adjacent to the courthouse.

Criticizing federal "reluctance to question the validity and usefulness of any established program," Steiger said he believes, "The welfare system is in need of major overhaul in a number of areas because of serious deficiencies."

New Day Dawning

He continued, "A new day is dawning in Washington," with several Presidential and congressional study groups involved in studies.

National standards for eligibility and welfare payments and federalization of the entire welfare apparatus are two alternatives being considered, Steiger said. He also referred to proposals for a negative income tax and a credit income tax.

He said the current system tends to encourage continued dependency on welfare payments, excludes great numbers of needy persons, and sets benefits well below amounts needed for minimum existence.

"In short, the current system is a custodial system that perpetuates dependency and despair, destroys families and discriminates most viciously against those who need help the most," Steiger said.

Two Hurt in Outagamie Car Mishaps

Hortonville Man Injured as Auto Rams Into Truck

Two traffic accidents on Outagamie County roads Sunday evening sent three persons to hospitals.

David Frye, Hortonville, was taken by ambulance to Appleton Memorial Hospital about 7:45 p.m. after his car rammed the rear of a stalled semi-trailer unit on U. S. 10, two miles west of Appleton.

County police said Frye suffered a fractured right arm, face lacerations, and a right knee injury.

He was westbound on 10 when his car struck the rear of the truck driven by Charles R. Angell, 1226 W. Wisconsin Ave. Angell said he got the truck to the side of the road after a driveshaft broke. Flashers were operating on the truck and Angell had placed flares out near the scene. Police estimated damage at $1,800.

Two Brillion residents were taken to Kaukauna Community Hospital by ambulance about 6:45 p.m. Sunday after the car they were in was struck from behind on U. S. 41, three miles northeast of Kaukauna.

Drivers involved were Jerome E. Nies, 44, 519 Lincoln Ave., Brillion, and Donald E. Hagerla, 54, Rhinelander.

Police said Nies was north-

The Law and You 'Privileged' Information Is Seldom Used in Court Action

In a trial the judge decides what evidence can be heard. He applies rules of evidence so that relevant truth may come out in court to decide guilt or innocence, liability or not.

There are several exceptions to the general rule that every person of sufficient understanding may testify in any civil or criminal action or proceeding. Generally, persons, whom the court will restrict from testifying, have had certain close, personal relationships to the person who is a party to a trial. There are valid reasons of public policy behind this rule.

Privileged Information

A clergyman of any faith cannot repeat in court information he obtained while acting as confessor or spiritual counselor unless the person about whom he is testifying expressly permits it.

An attorney, too, is bound to secrecy concerning information given him by his clients while he is acting for them. Without the consent of the client, neither the attorney, his clerk, secretary, nor agent may testify to information or advice given him while he was performing his duties as an attorney.

A licensed physician or surgeon is another who may not disclose in court any information or any opinion based on facts he gained while giving medical care.

A husband and wife usually cannot be examined in court for or against his or her spouse

Communications between students and dean of men or women or students are privileged when made in the course of counseling a student or in the course of investigating the conduct of a student. The privilege may be waived by the student and does not include a criminal case where the dean has been subpoenaed to testify.

A public hearing will be sought Tuesday to air proposed changes in the Outagamie County zoning ordinances, giving the zoning committee policy-making authority.

A resolution for the hearing so the committee can come up with a recommendation will be presented at the February county board session Tuesday morning.

Under the proposed changes, the zoning committee would be the zoning policy authority, instead of the board of adjustments. The board would be relegated to hearing zoning appeals.

The committee indicated it felt administering of the zoning ordinances should be in the hands of the committee. The committee was not created until after the ordinances were adopted.

The ordinances include the airport, zoning, sanitary and shorelands regulations.

Kremlin Beginning To Pay for Halting 'Soft Line' Policy

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

PARIS (AP) — The Italian Communist Party's stinging slap at Moscow is another link in a chain of evidence suggesting that the Kremlin is feeling the delayed impact of the Khrushchev era and probably paying for its efforts to reverse it.

Meeting in Bologna, the West's biggest Communist Party emphatically challenged Moscow's renewed claim to a monopoly of authority over the international Communist movement.

The Bologna rebellion threw the so-called Brezhnev Doctrine back into the teeth of the Soviet party's general secretary, Leonid I. Brezhnev. It could conceivably be a severely damaging blow to his prestige abroad and to his position at home.

Develops in Own Way
What is going on now was begun by Nikita S. Khrushchev as far back as 1955, when he promised Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia that the Kremlin would honor Yugoslavia's right to develop Communism in its own way.

That, along with Khrushchev's 1956 speech dethroning the dead Stalin from his demigod status, began a process which Khrushchev's successors have been unable to halt.

Recently President Tito met with Nicolae Ceausescu, the Communist chief of Romania, whose party also has been asserting its right to develop internally as it wants. The two mavericks disputed Moscow's right to occupy and dictate to Czechoslovakia.

Now the Italian party has denounced the Soviet occupation of Czechoslovakia to wild applause of its congress delegates, causing Soviet observers to walk out.

Awkward for Moscow

This should stiffen the resolve of the Yugoslavs and Romanians. It can also have strong repercussions in Czechoslovakia, whose Communist regime already is having considerable trouble convincing the country to toe the Soviet line.

The Italian party's stand is likely to find an echo in a score of other parties at a most awkward time for Moscow. The Soviet party is trying to arrange an international Communist meeting for May to demonstrate that the movement is united and listens to Moscow.

All this can lead to a quarrel among the Soviet leadership regarding who is to blame. The blame could easily fall on Brezhnev.

Brezhnev issued his "doctrine" on Sept. 26, holding that Communists must regard international and national law as "subordinate to the laws of class struggle and social development." Communist-ruled states, it held, have only limited sovereignty which ends when Moscow decides any internal development threatens party authority.

The Romanians and Yugoslavs, and now the Italians, reject this. Other parties find it embarrassing, since it asserts in effect that any country ruled by Communists must be a Soviet satellite.

False Slogans
Signs of frustration in Moscow are plentiful. Pravda fumes about "so-called liberalization" and "false slogans of Socialist humanitarianism." The Soviet press hints that the international meeting in May could bring a restoration of the concept of the Communist International, which before World War II exacted obedience to Moscow from all the world's Red parties.

The present Soviet leaders can blame Khrushchev for implanting the idea that Moscow was fallible. Today a careful but steady effort can be detected to repolish Stalin's image, as if in a belated effort to repair some of the damage.

But for Moscow's purposes, re-establishment of some of the aspects of Stalinism can be a double-edged sword. It can have strong political repercussions both outside and inside the Soviet Union.

The Soviet party was divided on the invasion of Czechoslovakia, according to all the signs. The indications are that the leadership remains divided. Should the leaders become involved in a test between the tough-liners and moderates to assess the blame for what has happened, it could lead to some spectacular political fireworks.

Cuban Lost Wife, Children

First Hijacking Still a Nightmare

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — With every airplane hijacking, the nightmare returns for Osiris Martinez. The men with guns. The fear. The crash. The pain. The wife and children lost forever.

He is one of the three persons who survived the first sky piracy in 1958.

Martinez survived when five gunmen hijacked a Cubana Airlines plane on Nov. 1, 1958. But his wife and three children were among 17 persons killed when the plane crashed into the Atlantic, a bare 250 yards from the Cuban coast.

"It was a nightmare and every time I hear there's been another plane hijacked, I wonder if the nightmare will repeat itself," the 42-year-old Miami plastic plant supervisor said Sunday.

Returned to Cuba

Martinez said he left his native Cuba in 1950, found work in Chattanooga, Tenn., and moved his family there. He returned to his homeland in 1958 and got a job there. He said he was escorting his family on a flight from Miami to their new home in Cuba when five supporters of Fidel Castro struck. It was during the Batista regime.

"Suddenly a man jumped up from his seat," Martinez said. "He pointed a gun at us. Four other men did the same thing. Nobody knew what was happening until the five men opened a small luggage compartment on the floor and pulled out fatigue type uniforms and machine guns."

He said the five changed into the uniforms marked with red and black armbands identifying them as members of Castro's 26th of July movement.

"They were showing a big bundle of money. They talked about landing in Cuba and getting off over there and we could go on—from the Varadero Airport," he said.

Hijackers in Cockpit

"Some of the hijackers went into the cockpit. Later we were told that the pilot, Capt. Ruskin Medrano, had refused to change the course of the aircraft and had been hit over the head."

Martinez said a hijacker took the controls and flew the Viscount toward landing strips in Oriente Province, near Castro's mountain stronghold. But, he said, darkness fell and the pilot was unable to land the plane on the small, unlighted strips.

"The plane repeatedly juggled up and down as time after time we couldn't land. It was like a madhouse. Everybody was screaming and vomiting. The luggage tumbled over our heads," he recalled.

"Suddenly one of the hijackers rushed out of the cockpit and jumped into a seat, bracing himself for a crash.

"Then we hit. It was indescribable. Everything went blank and I don't recall what happened until I found myself under water, struggling to surface. I was bleeding profusely from the mouth, gashes on my head. I had several cracked ribs and my feet were torn. I couldn't move."

Shouted for Family
"I frantically shouted for my family, but they had all gone down amid the debris. I hung on to something, an object floating on the water. I heard shouts from the two other survivors. Then all was silent."

Martinez spent two months recovering from his injuries. He left Cuba for good in 1960 and eventually settled in Miami.

In the intervening years, he has remarried. He now has a son and daughter. And a recurring nightmare.

"It gives me the idea that one of these days one of these hijackers is going to cause an accident just like this one," he said. "If I would get in a plane, I would feel very apprehensive."

Oldest British Woman Celebrates 111th Year

LOWESTOFT, England (AP) — Britain's oldest woman, Mrs. Ada Rowe, celebrated her 111th birthday Thursday.

She received a giant birthday card from a nearby school and told the 7-year-old girl who brought it: "I expect you find me a funny old thing."

Mrs. Rowe got a message of congratulations from Queen Elizabeth II and a compliment from councillor Roy Burgess, who said: "You could easily take her for a woman of 80."

New York Snowbound By Paralyzing Blizzard

Newark, and other parkways were plagued by deserted autos. Arteries leading to New York City were jammed and moving slowly.

The state legislatures in Trenton, N.J. and Albany N.Y., canceled today's session.

Connecticut commuters had it no better, as sections of the turnpike were closed and many secondary roads were impassable. A stalled train on the New Haven Railroad further delayed the irregular schedules.

Canaan, in northwestern Connecticut, reported 35 inches of snow.

The storm center moved into the Atlantic Ocean off Nantucket, Mass., at 3 30 a.m., the Weather Bureau said. It had originated off the Virginia Capes Saturday night, and dumped five inches of snow in portions of Virginia and Maryland.

The near-blizzard moved from the metropolitan area into New England, dumping 16 inches of snow at Scituate, R.I., near Providence. Massachusetts, Maine and southern New Hampshire and Vermont also bore the brunt of the storm.

Power failures, caused by lines collapsing under the weight of ice and snow, occurred sporadically, chiefly in Westchester County, directly north of New York City.

Dedication ceremonies for Boston's new City Hall were postponed until Tuesday. Logan International Airport was scheduled to reopen at noon, but a spokesman said there would be long delays into the afternoon.

Farewell Dinner Features Laughter and Tears

Lombardi Rides Out in Style, Like Arthur of Camelot

BY BOB WOESSNER
Post-Crescent News Service

MILWAUKEE — Vince Lombardi left Camelot Sunday night with the cheers of hundreds ringing in his ears and surrounded by a crowd of autograph seekers that would have made a president proud.

Seven hundred fans of the Packers and Lombardi paid $12.50 a ticket to place yet another garland of applause on the man who brought fame and glory to himself, his team and his city.

The ceremonies, at the first Wisconsin Pro Football Writers dinner at the ornate Pfister Hotel, were part wake, part family gathering and part pep rally.

Like the Arthur of Camelot, Lombardi rode out in style. We hate to see you go, dozens of friends told him, but it was sure swell while it lasted.

Again and Again
"It is a rather sad night," the guest of honor said. But it had its moments of laughter as well as times of tears.

Lombardi met the press at a pre-banquet conference and answered again and again the questions he has had put to him the last week.

Yes, he said, he was sorry to leave Green Bay. Yes, it would be a challenge in Washington, but a man thrives on challenge.

He grinned into blinding television lights as he moved through an interview room like some sort of deluxe-model piece of machinery moving down an assembly line.

"I couldn't have come back here, it would have been grossly unfair," he told a television station.

"If the board had said no, I would have stayed," he said to another.

He favored a radio station with the observation that, "I don't have to be in Green Bay to be loyal to Green Bay."

He kidded a writer — "I didn't recognize you with a white shirt on" — joked with photographers when he was asked to pose with a group of his players — "I feel like Singer's Midget," he said.

"The stir in Washington was flattering. In fact, it scared me," he told a newspaperman.

A Good Question

He was relaxed, charming as he shook hands, answered questions that often bordered on the stupid. Only once did his temper show. Why didn't you people set up your cameras so we only had to do this once, he asked the seventh or eighth reporter who

Vande Hey Hits 27 Points

St. John Downs Zephyrs

BY GEORGE MANCOSKY
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MENASHA — Fancy first half shooting provided Little Chute St. John with a good cushion and it went on to outscore Menasha St. Mary, 66-51, in a Fox Valley Catholic Conference game here Sunday night.

The Dutchmen, in handing the Zephyrs their 13th straight conference defeat after an opening victory and boosting their own league mark to 8-6, hit 10 of 16 attempts from the field in the first quarter and dropped in six of 12 in the second on their way to a 36-22 halftime lead.

The Menashans were sharp in the first frame too, making six of 10 but they tailed off three of 12 in the second.

Chief Zephyr tormenter was Gary Vande Hey, who bagged six baskets in nine tries in the first period and two of three in the second. He collected 16 points in the first half and finished with 27 for the game.

The Dutchmen did their greatest damage in the late stages of the first segment and the early minutes of the second. Leading, 14-13, they netted the last six points of the first stanza and then with the score, 22-16, in the second they put together a string of 10 to double the count at 32-16.

Reduce Margin
The Zephyrs began to peck away at the lead halfway through the third period and reduced it to nine at 43-34, only to have the victors notch a skein of six points on two baskets by Vande Hey and another by Rick Van Roy. The last three points of the quarter by St. Mary trimmed the score to 49-38.

St. Mary's hopes for a complete comeback were dispelled when it couldn't find the range in the early going of the last quarter. Almost 3½ minutes elapsed before Phil Raiche hit a jump shot.

The Chuters didn't set the world on fire either and a free throw by Vande Hey with 2½ minutes gone made up their total offense up until Raiche's basket.

Chuters up Lead

With the help of good free throw shooting (7 of 8) and a few baskets, the winners were able to maintain a comfortable margin the rest of the way. At one juncture they led by 19 points but St. Mary made it a final 15 by dropping in six of the last eight markers.

Vande Hey pumped in his game high of 27 on 12 baskets and three free throws. Van Roy contributed 14 points and Mike Verbruggen scored 13.

Pat Hermus and Dave Lotzer accounted for the greater portion of St. Mary's offense with 18 and 17 points, respectively.

Rodgers Comes Off Bench to Key Bucks Past Rockets, 117-109

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Guy Rodgers doesn't appreciate those jack-rabbit starts, but he would have lots of trouble getting sympathy from the San Diego Rockets.

Rodgers was called off the bench by the Milwaukee Bucks Sunday, and scored 18 points in less than 15 minutes to help his team to a 117-109 National Basketball Association victory over the Rockets.

The 6-foot veteran is one of three highly rated Buck guards, and starting assignments usually go to the other two, Jon McGlocklin and Flynn Robinson.

"It's rough to get in there after getting all warmed up at first, and then cooling off on the bench," Rodgers complained.

That hasn't slowed him in the past. Rodgers, 33, scored 11 consecutive points in 90 seconds to engineer an earlier Milwaukee victory over San Diego 101-96, and he came off the bench to spark the Bucks' 107-98 decision over the Chicago Bulls last week.

Before Rodgers arrived Sunday, Milwaukee trailed 81-76.

The game attendance was a record 9,608, topping the Bucks' former home high of 9,182 Jan. 21 when the Los Angeles Lakers were in town.

Milwaukee, 17-43, hosts Atlanta Wednesday.

Casper Rallies For Victory in Hope Classic

Billy Beats Hill by 3 Strokes, Pockets $20,000 Top Prize

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Billy Casper finally got off the launching pad and onto the victory stand. A position he occupied six times in golf in 1968.

A nonwinner in this new season, Casper forged from behind in the final round to capture the $122,000 Bob Hope Desert Classic Sunday at the par 36-32-72 Indian Wells Country Club.

The 37-year-old California pocketed $20,000 a nice start in a bid to repeat as the same's leading money winner. He was tops with $205,009 last year.

A last-round six-under par 66 for a 90-hole score of 345-15 under par for the marathon—was three shots in front of Dave Hill's 348 last round 66. Hill, from Evergreen, Colo., won his second largest purse, $11,400.

Such stars as defending champion Arnold Palmer, a former winner. Jack Nicklaus, as well as U.S. Open champion Lee Trevino, did not fare well on the bright and sunny day.

Far Back

Never serious threats. Nicklaus had a final 69 for 354 and $1,350 Trevino 71 for 353 and $1,800 and Palmer 70 for 356 and $755.

Casper and the sentimental favorite of the show, Art Wall Jr., rounded the turn into the final nine holes all even.

Wall, the 1959 Masters champion and one of the tigers of the 50s, began to wilt and Casper virtually settled it all with an eagle 3 on the 478-yard 14th hole. Billy hit a No. 4 wood 25 feet from the cup and sank it.

It was a breeze in but Casper, a determined guy, went for another eagle 3 on the last green from 45 feet. The ball lagged up short three feet and he closed out with a birdie.

"My goal was to get off to a good start," said Casper. "At no time later did I ever have it in mind to play conservatively. I've lost quite a few tournaments playing that way I was shooting for birdies from start to finish."

Don Smith Sixth In International Snowmobile 500

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP)—Don Smith of Appleton, Wis., finished sixth Sunday among a field of 47 in the International 500 snowmobile race run on a one-mile oval.

Don Planck of Lapeer was first in 13 hours, 42 minutes, 12 seconds.

Black Hawks Drop to Cellar With 5-3 Loss

By JOE MOOSHIL

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Black Hawk string of 10 straight Stanley Cup appearances is on the brink of ending. Super stars Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita not withstanding.

The Hawks took undisputed possession of last place in the East Division of the National Hockey League when they dropped their fifth straight to the equally stumbling Toronto Maple Leafs 5-3 Sunday night.

The defeat put them two points behind the fifth-place Maple Leafs, who have three games in hand and seven points behind the Detroit Red Wings, who hold the last available playoff berth.

Clinch Victory

The Hawks fell behind Toronto to 4-0 before Hull and a couple of kids up from Dallas and played their first NHL game by bringing them within one goal of the lead. But Toronto clinched it midway in the final period on a Bill Sutherland goal.

Hull's 34th goal and goals by rookies Jean Paul LeBlanc and Paul Shmyr helped only to make the game interesting.

The surge gave Coach Billy

Reay some hope as he said, "We played well enough to win. If we keep playing that well, we'll win our share."

Reay then added as an afterthought, "Maybe we'll need more than our share."

Hull, the Hawks' Golden Jet, looked at the bright side of things and said, "There's a long way to go, 22 more games and that means there are 44 points to be got."

Take My Chances

Bobby, recovering from a broken jaw, also announced he is through wearing his helmet and face mask. "I'll just have to go out there and take my chances."

Mikita, slowed up considerably with nagging injuries, sat in his cubicle with a bewildered look on his face.

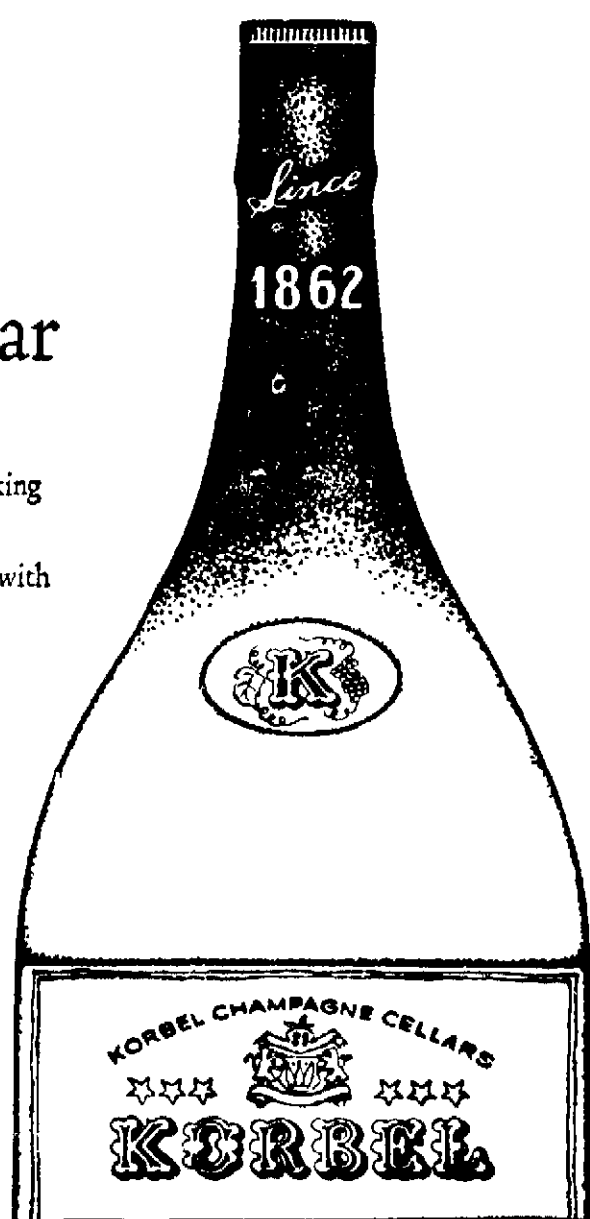

"Where they gonna get the bodies?" asked Mikita when it was suggested he might take a rest. Hull, we're not doing anything different than we did when we won 12-0.

Reay seemed to have the answer as he dwelled upon his team's woes. "You know, we just can't seem to get it all together. If it isn't one thing it's another."

Seagren Sets New Indoor Vault Mark

By JACK STEVENSON
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pole vault champion Bob Seagren, with a new world indoor record of 17 feet 6 inches, continues to aim at 18 feet and notes, "The more times I get to jump at it, the better chance I've got."

Seagren cleared the 17-6 at Saturday night's Times Indoor Games in Los Angeles and will compete again in Montreal on Friday night and flew back to California to go even higher.

After this coming weekend, Olympic champion Seagren, who has cleared 17-9 outdoors, plans to compete in about five other indoor meets.

He was voted the outstanding athlete in the Times meet before 13,736 at The Forum on a night when Australia's Ralph Doubell ran the second fastest indoor 1,000 meters ever.

Young Extends Streak

The Aussie led all the way to post a 2:06.3, second only to Peter Snell's 2:06, a race run by the New Zealander in 1962.

West Germany's Jurgen May, on the comeback trail, won the mile but in comparatively slow time of 4:05.8. Poland's Henryk Szordykowski finished second in 4:06.7.

George Young, the 31-year-old school teacher from Casa Grande, Ariz., ran his unbeaten string of indoor races to 16 when he outlegged Australia's Kerry O'Brien in the two-mile. The indefatigable Young won in 8:42.4 as he surged ahead with two laps to go. O'Brien couldn't catch him and wound up at 8:43.0 followed by early pace setter Ole Oleson of Southern California in 8:45.

Willie Davenport of the Houston Striders equalled the world record in the 60-yard hurdles for the second straight night with a 6.8 clocking. Like Seagren, he had competed at Ft. Worth. Davenport, who hopes for a pro football career, shares the record with Hayes Jones.

Petite Barbara Ferrell turned in the night's only double victory and both times she beat Olympic 200-meter champion Irena Szewinska of Poland. In the 60 it was Miss Ferrell in 6.7 and Mrs. Szewinska in 6.9 for second place.

In the 300, Barbara won in 36.2 but Lois Drinkwater of Phoenix, Ariz., took second in 36.3 with the Polish gal third in 36.6.

Slow First Quarter

Doubell said he thought he could have broken the 1,000 record except the first quarter was run too slowly.

Another of track's big guns, Jim Ryun, was in action Saturday night, for the first time since being upset by Kipchoge Keino of Kenya in the 1,500 meters at the Olympics.

Ryun, the world record holder in the mile-run, won that event at the 46th annual Michigan State Relays in a leisurely 4:06.2.

A pole vaulter also set the only record at the All-Eastern Indoor Games Saturday at Baltimore. Claus Schuprowski vaulted to a meet mark of 16-11.

In an upset at Baltimore, Sam Bair of Kent State had a five-race winning streak snapped in the mile, which was won by Bob Finley of the Toronto Track Club in 4:05.3.

UCLA, Santa Clara Remain Unbeaten in Busy Cage Weekend

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

UCLA came up with an effective pain-killer for Lew Alcindor's headache, but Santa Clara might have trouble finding a remedy for Bud Ogden's sprained ankle.

A headache sent Alcindor to the bench early in the second half of UCLA's Pacific 8 Conference game against Washington State last Saturday.

The 7-foot-1½ All-American left the game after scoring 10 points, but teammates John Vallely, Lynn Shackelford, Chris Rowe and Kenny Heitz picked up the slack as the top-ranked Bruins breezed to a 108-80 victory, their 18th without a loss this season.

No. 3 Santa Clara, the nation's only other unbeaten major power, extended its winning string to 20 with an 89-80 triumph over Pepperdine. But the Broncos' lost sparkplug Ogden in the first half when the high-scoring, 6-foot-6 forward twisted an ankle. The extent of the injury was not reported as of Sunday night.

The two West Coast titans, heading toward a possible showdown in the NCAA Tournament, are idle this week until Saturday, when UCLA takes on Washington State again on the Cougars' court and Santa Clara visits San Francisco for a West Coast Athletic Conference scrap.

38 in Row
The Bruins, who have run off 38 successive victories since a two-point loss at Houston a year ago, are 10-0 in the Pacific 8 this season and lead runner-up Washington State by 1½ games. The Broncos, 7-0 in the WCAC, have a two-game edge on four pursuers but could have trouble staying unbeaten without Ogden up front.

Elsewhere last weekend, seventh-ranked LaSalle outscored No. 8 Villanova 74-67 in a Philadelphia summit clash and six other high-ranked teams won handily. No. 2 North Carolina bombed Florida State 100-82. No. 4 Kentucky trounced Mississippi 104-68 and No. 5 St. John's N.Y., stymied Army 65-43.

Sixth-ranked Davidson crushed George Washington 126-98, No. 9 Purdue whipped Northwestern 97-84 and No. 10 Illinois thrashed Iowa 98-69.

Valley led the UCLA point-parade with 23 while Shackelford contributed 15. Rowe and Heitz 14 apiece, Ogden's brother, Ralph, and 6-foot-9 Dennis Loyola 7-0 in overtime.

Awtrey each scored 17, keying the Santa Clara attack.

Ed Szczesny came off the LaSalle bench and hit three baskets down the stretch as the Explorers got past arch rival Villanova for their 18th victory in 19 starts. Soph Ken Durrett topped the LaSalle scorers with 20 points.

23 For Scott
Charlie Scott put in 23 points and Bill Bunting 22 as North Carolina ran its season mark to 17-1. The Tar Heels are 8-0 in the Atlantic Coast Conference but face rugged tests this week in North Carolina State and South Carolina.

Dan Issel's 26 points paced Kentucky's Southeastern Conference leaders to their 16th triumph in 18 games and Joe DePere scored 10 of 14 St. John's points in a second half getaway that sent the Redmen, 16-2, past Pepperdine.

Davidson rolled to its 48th consecutive home court victory behind 26-point performances by Mike Maloy and Jerry Kroll. The Wildcats are 18-2 over-all and 7-0 in the Southern Conference.

Rick Mount's 31-point spree led Purdue to its sixth Big Ten Conference victory without a loss and soph Greg Jackson's rebounding and defensive work helped Illinois tie 12th ranked Ohio State for the runner-up spot at 4-2. The Boilermakers are 13-3, the Illini 14-2 for the season.

Tulsa Triumphs
Eleventh-ranked Tulsa raced to its 10th straight Missouri Valley Conference victory, topping Bradley 94-80 for an 18-2 season mark. Ohio State, 12-4, was upset by Wisconsin 77-73.

Kansas, No. 13, squeezed past Oklahoma 66-59 in overtime to stay within one-half game of 20th-ranked Colorado's Big Eight Conference leaders, who edged Nebraska 83-81.

But 14th-ranked Columbia bowed to Penn 91-81 and slipped two full games behind front-running Princeton in the Ivy League title chase. The Tigers beat Cornell 67-57 for an 8-0 Ivy mark.

Duquesne, No. 15, throttled Holy Cross 98-80 Sunday for its 15th victory in 17 starts. Saturday night, No. 16 New Mexico State beat Northern Illinois 63-59. Marquette riddled Eastern Michigan 82-58. No. 18 New York State defeated Arizona 79-74 and Loyola 70-68 in overtime.

Wirkola Tops Westby Meet

Norwegian Skiers Dominate Jumping; Watt Leaps 314 Feet

WESTBY (AP) — Near-flawless style boosted Norwegian Born Wirkola to the title Sunday in the Snowflake Ski Club's 46th annual ski jump meet.

Wirkola, the defending champion, traveled 396 feet and 310 feet for 215.4 points while runner-up Adrian Watt of Duluth, Minn., had 206 points despite turning in the best flight of the day—314 feet.

Snow conditions were not suitable for records Sunday. Wirkola, who set a hill record of 318 feet last year, had traveled an unofficial 345 in practice Saturday.

Norwegians took third, fourth and fifth place behind Watt, and another Norwegian, Terje Gulbrandsen, won the junior division.

Perennial winner Billy Olson of Eau Claire won the veteran's class in a small field. Tim Kingsfield of Racine was fifth in the junior class.

Behind the Norway entries in Class A, Dave Norby of Madison was sixth, Bill Bakke of Madison seventh, Peter Mikkelsen of Westby ninth and Ron Jacobson of Madison 10th.

Russell's Return Fires Celtics to Overtime Win

By DAVE O'HARA
BOSTON (AP) — Bill Russell, relaxed and in high spirits after a week's rest for treatment of a knee injury and sheer exhaustion, is up to his old tricks and ready to lead his Boston Celtics in the late stages of the National Basketball Association race.

The 35-year-old player-coach was Boston's unanimous choice as Comeback Player of the Week Sunday after sparking the Celtics to a 122-117 overtime victory over the Philadelphia 76ers before 6,095 hardy fans who braved a heavy snowstorm.

In other NBA action Sunday, Wilt Chamberlain poured through 66 points, high for the league this season, as Los Angeles thumped Phoenix 134-116; Baltimore edged Atlanta 102-101; San Francisco nipped Seattle 121-120 and Milwaukee topped San Diego 117-109.

Miami got by New Orleans 105-103, Indiana nipped Minnesota 119-118 and Houston outlasted Oakland 129-123 in the American Basketball Association Sunday.

The New York at Kentucky game was postponed.

Rallies Club
Russell came off the bench to rally the Celtics from a 10-point deficit in the first period and turned in last-minute heroics, blocking two shots and stuffing a basket with two seconds left to send the game into overtime.

"The knee is a little sore in the back, but it didn't give me any trouble," Russell said after 45 minutes of action. "I'm no more tired than usual. It's just that time of year again."

Russell came off the bench to rally the Celtics from a 10-point deficit in the first period and turned in last-minute heroics, blocking two shots and stuffing a basket with two seconds left to send the game into overtime.

"The knee is a little sore in the back, but it didn't give me any trouble," Russell said after 45 minutes of action. "I'm no more tired than usual. It's just that time of year again."

Russell, who strained right knee ligaments in scoring on a pass-in by John Havlicek against New York Feb. 2, checked himself out of the hospital late Thursday night and watched from the bench as the Celtics' lost a fifth straight game in a defeat by Atlanta Friday night.

After working out Saturday, he decided to dress for the meeting with the 76ers, hoping to lend a hand in snapping the Celtics' longest losing streak in two decades.

Relieved Barnes
"The doctor told me to play it by ear," to go out and see how it feels," Russell said. "I figured to just give Jim Barnes some relief, but then he got into early foul trouble and I decided to go in."

"I wasn't thinking about any losing streak. We don't worry about the next game—or the last one."

With three seconds left and Philadelphia in front 110-108 in the fourth period, the Celtics called time out for a discussion with General Manager Red Auerbach, who continued as coach to allow Russell to concentrate on playing.

Havlicek and Russell worked the same play on which the player-coach was injured a week earlier. Larry Siegfried set up a pick on the 76ers' Darrell Imhoff, and Havlicek looped a high pass to Russell under the basket. Russ dunked the ball.

Russell's comeback included nine points, 23 rebounds, three assists and several key blocks of shots.

Big Day
Chamberlain not only dominated the scoring, he also grabbed 28 rebounds, and Elgin Baylor made his presence felt by handing out a pro career high of 16 assists and contributing 23 points. Dick Van Arsdale topped Phoenix with 32 points.

Earl Monroe scored 15 of his 29 points in the fourth quarter to lead Baltimore over Atlanta. Don Ohl scored 15 of 20 Atlanta points during one stretch and finished with 26.

Jeff Mullins' two foul shots with one second left lifted San Francisco over Seattle in a game in which six technicals were called. Seattle's John Tresvant and trainer Jack Curran were ejected. Mullins finished with 34 points. Bob Rule topped Seattle with 31.

Non-Sanctioned Pin Series

Ruth Schmidt Jolts 638 Set

Ruth Schmidt has come close to a national honor count on several occasions in league bowling this season, and finally when she did top that 600 mark Saturday night it didn't count as an official sanctioned series.

Miss Schmidt was bowling as a pacer in the Forest Green Couples League and cracked a 638 total. Ruth started with a 176 game, followed with a 247 and finished with a 215. In the high game she had eight strikes.

Ruth was filling the spot for a bowler whose average was used for the 3-game series. Since Ruth's score did not count toward the outcome of the match, it could not officially be counted for sanctioning.

Five in Career
It was the first time this season Miss Schmidt topped the 600 mark although she has had five national sets in her league bowling career which is now in its eighth season. Last November she rolled a 592 series and last Monday had a 587 in the Queen's Classic at Sabre.

In addition to doing a lot of bowling, Ruth is an instructor with the junior bowling program at Sabre Lanes.

Other top scores from the Forest Green loop included Evelyn Myers 211-527, Bev Behrent 526, Phyllis Duquette 508 and Alice Mavroff 197.

From the men keggers, Tom Hibbard hit a 572 total and Ken Behrent had 561.

Only a low middle game prevented Joan Kolosso from hitting a national count in the TV Sparemakers League at Sabre Lanes Sunday night.

Mrs. Kolosso started with a 237 and finished with 193 for a 580 series.

Etta Vanesky rolled a 204 line and led the men were "Butch" Swick with a 553 set and Bob Wulterkins had 550.

Beverly Lyon had consistent games of 190, 190 and 198 for a 578 series in the Card Couples League at Sabre Saturday.

Don Post had a 585.

Bill Resch smacked a 637 series and Jack Stingle rolled a 606 for top scores in the cocktail Couples League at Sabre Lanes Saturday.

Earl Meutzel slammed a 224 game and 569 series, Wayne Stern rolled 560 and Vince Bressers had 550. For the women, Karla Stingle hit 195-532, Cleone Rohloff had 211-523, Lois Bressers fired 507, Margaret Koskoske hit 199-504 and Audrey Ertl hit 199.

Jim Traas smacked a 244 game and 610 series to set the pace in the Fish Couples League at Sabre Lanes Sunday. Don Post had a 585.

Wellie Fox May Lead Senators
Short Considers Naming Interim Manager for 1969

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Robert Short, president of the Washington Senators, says if he can't find his type of baseball manager, he will appoint an interim field general from the American League team's coaching staff.

"If I don't get the guy I want, I could wind up having Nellie Fox manage the team this year," Short was quoted in Monday's editions of the Minneapolis Tribune. Fox is a Senators' coach.

Short said he has taken former Oakland A's Manager Bob Kennedy out of consideration.

"Kennedy asked for a three-year contract," Short said, "something I wasn't going to give."

Short reportedly is asking former Boston Red Sox slugger Ted Williams to take the job. Short also has said that he is considering former Minnesota Twins' managers Sam Mele and Cal Ermer.

Short fired General Manager George Selkirk and told Manager Jim Lemon he could stay as batting coach. Lemon did not accept the offer.

With three seconds left and Philadelphia in front 110-108 in the fourth period, the Celtics called time out for a discussion with General Manager Red Auerbach, who continued as coach to allow Russell to concentrate on playing.

Havlicek and Russell worked the same play on which the player-coach was injured a week earlier. Larry Siegfried set up a pick on the 76ers' Darrell Imhoff, and Havlicek looped a high pass to Russell under the basket. Russ dunked the ball.

Coaching, Office Job With Yankees Out, Mantle Says

DALLAS (AP) — Mickey Mantle will talk hitting until it comes out of his ears but when it comes to the topic of lower pitching mounds in the major leagues the New York Yankee slugger passes.

"The kid pitchers coming up are big and strong and the main difference from years gone by is that they are smart," says Mantle.

"I mean a kid 22 years old has been watching games on TV for 10 years and he knows how to pitch. They throw the right pitch in the right situation. They not only can overpower you, they can outsmart you."

Big league pitching mounds are being lowered from 15 to 10 inches this year because of low 1968 batting averages. Baseball fans lower mounds should help the hitters. But Mantle says, "Talk to the pitchers about this; they are the ones to say what the difference might be."

Won't Take Post
Mantle says that when he ends his playing career with the Yankees, he won't be taking a job as a coach or in the front office, as has been assumed.

The only place he will consider another baseball job is in Dallas. Mantle has lived here for 10 years and has decided to make Dallas his permanent home.

He would consider working with a Dallas-Fort Worth major league team.

"That's why I'm real hopeful that Dick Butler and his group can bring a major league franchise down here," says Mantle.

"When I do quit playing, the only place in baseball that I would think about working would be in this area. I've been traveling for all these years and I've had it. I want to stay home."

Butler is executive director of the Dallas-Fort Worth baseball interests and has been seeking a major league franchise for several years.

Lombardi Rides Out in Style

cornered him. It was a good question, but there was no answer.

The press conference over, he moved upstairs to the hotel presidential suite where too many people crowded into not enough space.

Marie Lombardi was there, resplendent in a flowing dress, to meet players who came to say goodbye, to chat with the governor and to explain how hard it was to leave the state where she had lived for a decade.

The room was hot, the bar was free and the party grew noisy as such things do. Amid the hubbub, the guest of honor stepped outside into a corridor where he talked shop with a friend. Strangely, few in the throng seemed to notice he was gone.

A few moments before the start of the banquet — Lombardi helped usher guests into elevators for the trip down to the hotel's main ballroom.

He marched into the room with the head table dignitaries, his starched shirt front glowing in the spotlights. The crowd rose and thundered a standing ovation.

Storm Ramparts

Lombardi finished his soup and salad despite the thrust of autograph seekers who stormed the ramparts of the tiered head table.

Vince drew more signature seekers than the other dignitaries. But Donnie Anderson attracted a younger crowd, and a prettier one.

Toastmaster Lloyd Larson applied the needle as he referred to "the representative of the Washington Redskins" on the dais. "This is the first time," he said, "that tickets for a banquet have been scalped."

Then they began to come forward to praise him.

Warren Knowles said he had instilled spirit in the citizens of the state; a long-winded Milwaukee politician presented resolutions commending the team; and NFL official said he had telegrams from 53 league officials telling him how happy they were to have Lombardi back on the sidelines.

Dominic Olejniczak explained how hard it had been for the Packers to end relations "with a man of his stature," and offered a hand of friendship. "I hope the good Lord will grant you and your family continued joy and happiness."

'Last Supper'

Lee Rummel paid tribute and spoke of the dinner as "the last supper."

Then Phil Bengtson was introduced, received a tumultuous ovation, and told how he, too, would miss his associations with Lombardi.

On-the-field enemies, from the Chicago Bears and the New Orleans Saints, also offered sentiments. The writers, with whom Lombardi often sparred and bristled, presented him with a sterling silver tray.

Then the guest of honor came to the microphone and the thunder of applause echoed in the room. He fenced with a humorous opening, thanking people for the awards, thanking them for coming. He drew a laugh when he talked about "the sandwich tray" the writers gave him.

He praised the Packers on the dais—Willie Davis, Forrest Gregg, Fred Carr and Anderson. He lauded Doug Atkins who won the award named for Lombardi.

"This is my most difficult assignment," he told the throng, his voice breaking. He spoke of his decision, said he had the best job in football here but had "gone as far as I could go."

Lombardi spoke of the pressure of winning, of the vacuum created when he left the spot where the action was.

He missed the players, the rapport, the closeness, he said.

The future of the Packers is in good hands, he assured the crowd; "the Pack will be back."

Voice Breaks

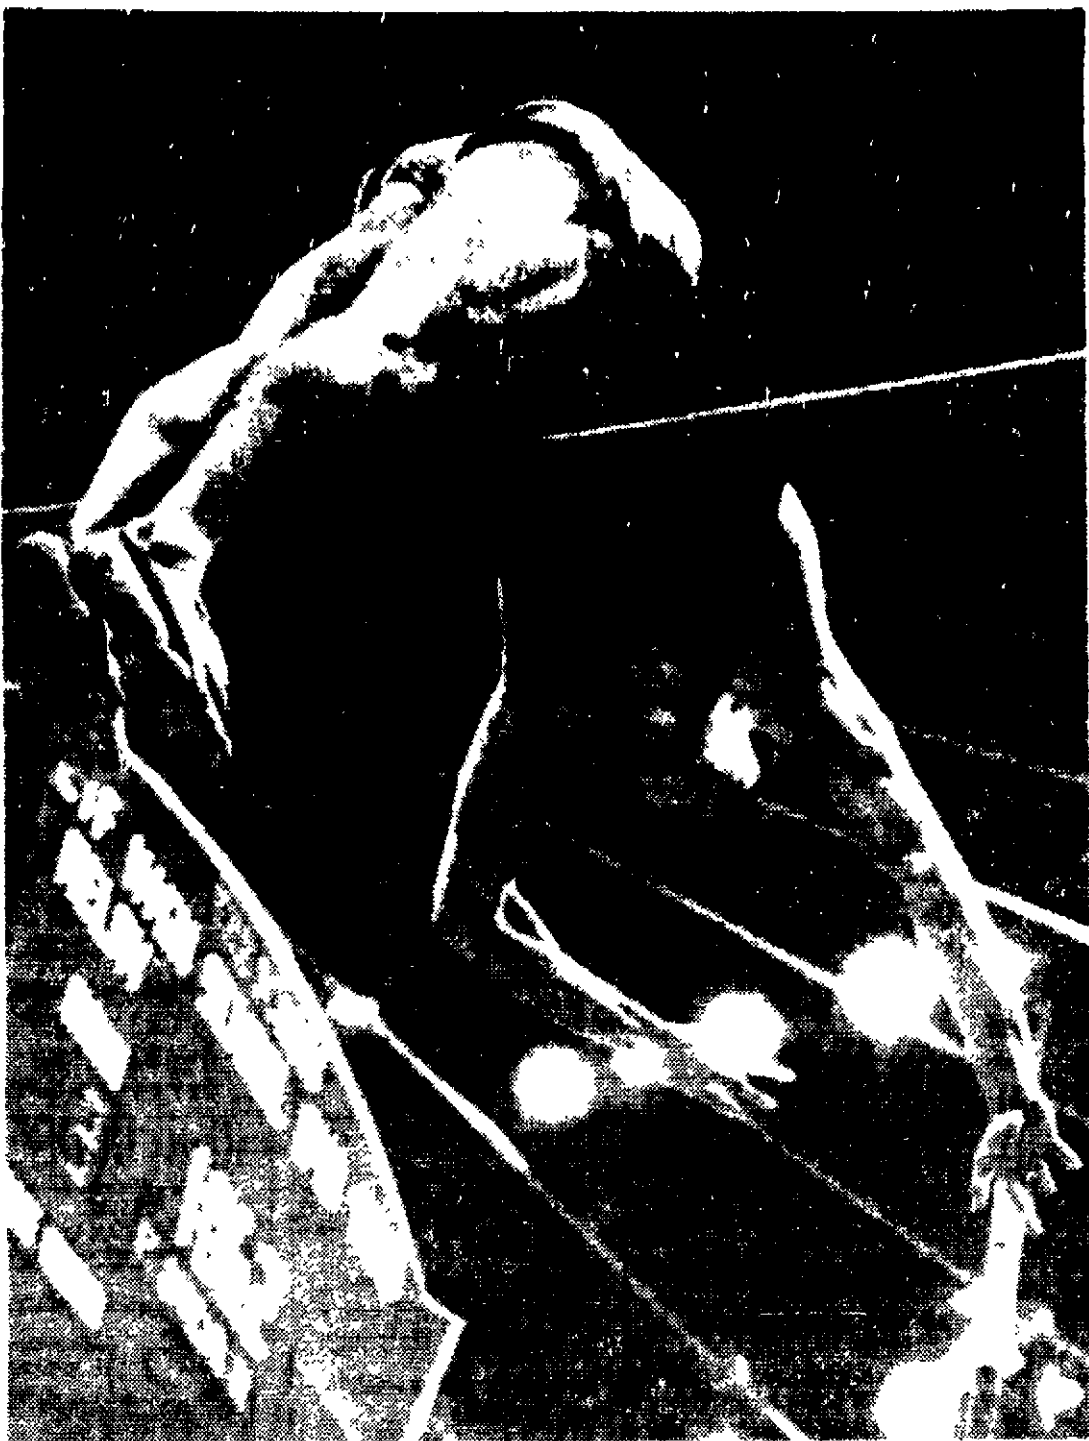

His voice broke when he spoke of George Halas and tightened when he talked of Gregg.

Then he went into a speech that might be titled the Lombardi creed. He spoke of sacrifice, self denial, dedication, love. There is a need for leaders, people who related to their people, men willing to pay the price, he intoned.

He finished, again thanked the writers for their honor and his voice grew hesitant as his throat tightened and his eyes brimmed with tears.

Then he sat down, the tears glistening in the lights and matching those of his wife at a front row table. The band played "Arrivederci Roma," the crowd again thundered its appreciation and Vince Lombardi sat and dabbed at his eyes as applause washed over him.

Inter-League Play Certainty

No Pro Grid Realignment

By MIKE RATHET

NEW YORK (AP) — There still are five weeks before pro football's 26 teams assemble in Palm Springs, Calif. to plot the shape of the sport in 1970, but it's a virtual certainty that the following decisions already have been dictated:

—There will be no realignment of the two leagues, the American and National football leagues maintaining their current structure, and equally important, their current identities.

—There will be a considerable number of inter-league regular season games, counting in the standings. The best guess now is that each AFL team will play four NFL rivals.

—The pre-season schedule of clubs in both leagues will almost totally consist of inter-league games, furthering the separate identities of the leagues and fully exploiting the economics involved in the inter-league rivalry.

Weeks of Talks

The conclusions reached above have been drawn by The Associated Press after several weeks of talks, both on and off the record, with pro football's club owners. These talks were conducted both prior to and after the stunning triumph by the AFL's New York Jets over the NFL's Baltimore Colts in the Super Bowl.

The conclusions are based on the following:

—Since the merger agreement of June 8, 1966, ended the AFL-NFL war, exploitation of that rivalry in pre-season games has proved extremely rewarding in the most important way possible—economically.

Premier Attraction

—Any reshuffling that would destroy the separate identities, even the most stubborn proponents of a reshuffling. Everything, of course, awaits to be officially determined by the vote of the 26 owners involved and will not ultimately be decided until they assemble for their annual meetings in Palm Springs, beginning March 17.

Reds' Star Wants $100,000

Rose Even Hustles In Winter

CINCINNATI (AP) — Pete Rose's desire and hustle do not fade in the off season—the only place he stands to get fat is in the pocket.

Rose of the Cincinnati Reds plays on five different basketball teams and is making commercials and public appearances besides spending occasional nights and weekends with the reserves.

Rose has not concealed the fact that he will be shooting for $100,000 this year.

"If you compare me with the others making that kind of money, I think I deserve it," says Rose, who won the National League batting championship in a frantic finish.

"I can't sympathize with the club because it drew only 750,000. That's not my fault," Rose says regarding the Reds' slumping attendance in 1968.

Awaits Pro Career

Alcindor Effective From 3 Feet or 20

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lew Alcindor, UCLA's 7-foot-1½ center, occasionally amazes his coach, John Wooden, with his ability to score.

The mobile monster is effective from two feet or 20. He can hit "nine out of 10 of those three-foot hook shots, no matter who's guarding him," says teammate Lynn Shackelford. "He's awesome," say most opposing players.

But Lew, a quiet, intelligent individual off the court, says he won't score very much when he first turns professional.

"I'm going to have to make an adjustment to the professional style of play," said Lew. "And that's a hard adjustment. I know I can do it, but I don't know how it's going to affect my game."

Play Defense

"I think my first year, the best thing I'll do is play defense. Scoring points—well, that's good for your salary but I don't know if that wins all the games."

Winning is the key to how Lew plays. He is selfish and a team player all the way. Anything that wins the game Lew will do.

"He is dedicated to the total effort of the team," said Wooden.

graphs to sign, more hands to shake. But the last hurrah had echoed.

The curtains had been drawn on Camelot.

a bespectacled former English teacher.

"I think all players want to do well individually but I think Lewis is more concerned about the over-all effort of the team. Figuring he can do his part without necessarily scoring a lot. He is a truly well-rounded ball player."

"When he indicated his desire to come to UCLA, I said at that time that one of the things that interested me most about him was all reports were that he was an unselfish team player. And certainly, I feel that is a necessity in our type of play."

Full Court Press

That type of play uses the swiftest of fast breaks, a tenacious full-court zone press and an emphasis on defense. To that end Alcindor has learned to become a running giant.

"I don't think I'd mind playing a running game with the pros. I think I'd like that a lot better than coming down and waiting to get beat up on."

Lew, clad in a UCLA letterman's sweater, burgundy knit shirt, checked trousers and large sunglasses, was reluctant to say for which professional team he would like to play.

But when he was asked: "Would you like to play for the New York Knicks?" his eyes opened a bit wider, a smile crossed his face and he attempted to squash emotion when the native New Yorker said, "Oh, yeah ..."

Give a medal to the Philadelphia Flyers for perseverance, and a point to the New York Rangers, Boston Bruins and Montreal Canadiens for coming back. But save the hat for Frank Mahovich, who has done both for the Detroit Red Wings.

The Flyers spent close to nine hours on a train trying to get from Boston to New York Sunday night in a swirling snowstorm. They finally made it but then almost wished they hadn't after blowing a 3-0 lead and settling for a 3-3 tie against the Rangers.

Boston wiped out a two-goal Oakland lead with a pair of late goals to earn a 3-3 standoff with the Seals and Montreal erased a 3-0 St. Louis lead and tied the Blues 4-4.

Mahovich had three goals leading Detroit to a 5-0 romp over Los Angeles. Toronto tagged Chicago 5-3 and Minnesota topped Pittsburgh 3-1 in other Sunday games.

Gets Only 16 Shots

Philadelphia showed the effects of its long train ride, managing just 16 shots against Don Simmons, who played goal for New York in place of snow-bound Ed Giacomin. But the Flyers held a 3-0 edge with less than 10 minutes to play before the Rangers started their comeback.

Bob Nevin's goal with 42 seconds left to play tied it for New York after Simmons had been pulled for an extra attacker.

Bobby Rousseau's 24th goal of the season with less than five minutes left capped Montreal's comeback against St. Louis. Jean Beliveau and Serge Savard also scored third period goals for the Canadiens.

The victory stretched Montreal's unbeaten string against St. Louis to 12 games over two seasons. The game was delayed one-half hour when Referee Vern Buefy was injured accidentally by a Ted Harris body-check.

Phil Esposito, the NHL's leading scorer, picked up a pair of assists, running his point total for the season to 87.

Mahovich scored his fourth hat trick of the season for Detroit and raised his goal total to a league leading 36. The big left winger, traded off by Toronto a year ago, has scored more goals this season for Detroit than he had in the last six seasons for Toronto.

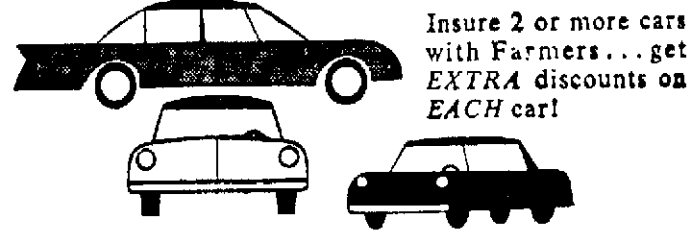

His linemates, Alex Delvecchio and Gordie Howe, had the other Red Wing goals, giving the line 84 for the season. The NHL record is 105 held by Montreal's Maurice Richard, Toe Blake and Elmer Lach in 1944-45.

Danny O'Shea's controversial goal with just over seven minutes left to play broke a tie and sent Minnesota to its victory over Pittsburgh.

Age 72, passed away unexpectedly at 4:10 Saturday. She was born November 20, 1896 in Hanover, Ill. She had been a Neenah resident most of her life, and a member of the First Presbyterian Church, Neenah. Survivors include one sister, Mrs. Walter (Rutty) Brooks, Neenah; three brothers, Roy York after Simmons had been pulled for an extra attacker.

Bobby Rousseau's 24th goal of the season with less than five minutes left capped Montreal's comeback against St. Louis. Jean Beliveau and Serge Savard also scored third period goals for the Canadiens.

The victory stretched Montreal's unbeaten string against St. Louis to 12 games over two seasons. The game was delayed one-half hour when Referee Vern Buefy was injured accidentally by a Ted Harris body-check.

Phil Esposito, the NHL's leading scorer, picked up a pair of assists, running his point total for the season to 87.

Mahovich scored his fourth hat trick of the season for Detroit and raised his goal total to a league leading 36. The big left winger, traded off by Toronto a year ago, has scored more goals this season for Detroit than he had in the last six seasons for Toronto.

His linemates, Alex Delvecchio and Gordie Howe, had the other Red Wing goals, giving the line 84 for the season. The NHL record is 105 held by Montreal's Maurice Richard, Toe Blake and Elmer Lach in 1944-45.

Danny O'Shea's controversial goal with just over seven minutes left to play broke a tie and sent Minnesota to its victory over Pittsburgh.

State Part of Training Project

CHICAGO (AP) — Wisconsin is one of 12 states taking part in a 17-contract program under which more than 2,600 jobless or underemployed persons will be trained on the job. Labor Secretary George P. Schultz announced Friday.

Schultz said nearly $2,300,000 has been earmarked for the projects by the U.S. Department of Labor.

In Wisconsin, four training proposals were approved. The largest of the Wisconsin projects is by Amphenol Controls Division of Bunker-Ramo Corp., Dodgeville, where 50 electronics assemblers will be trained for eight weeks. All the trainees will be recruited from the ranks of the unemployed. Two out of three will be disadvantaged persons.

Other Wisconsin projects approved were three in Milwaukee, involving a total of four trainees.

Big Problems Get Bigger for House Buyers

7.5 Per Cent Rate
May be High Now,
But Low in Future

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Inflation and high interest rates are presenting potential homeowners today with problems more suited to financial experts. But they, rather than the experts, must provide the answers.

Should you, for example, obtain a mortgage now at 7.5 per cent interest or wait until money prices come back down to 6 per cent or so, which is the rate your friend received a few years ago?

The question has no easy answer. The fellow with a $25,000 mortgage at 6 per cent a year for 20 years pays principal and interest of $179.11 a month. You, if you took the 7.5 per cent mortgage, would pay $201.40, or $22.29 more.

This may seem rather unimportant to you, especially when the landlord of your apartment house might boost your rent by that amount in the next lease. But consider the costs over longer periods of time.

The man with the 6 per cent mortgage pays $2,129.32 a year or $42,586.40 over the 20-year life of his loan. You pay $2,416.80 a year, or $48,336 for 20 years, a total of $5,749.60 more.

Indefinite Delay

Now that's nothing to overlook even for a banker. Do you wait, then, until a more suitable rate can be obtained? Perhaps, but in doing so you risk an indefinite delay in purchasing. No body knows when rates will fall. They may, in fact, rise even higher during the next few months.

Evidence of how high are present rates is provided by the experience some months ago of Financial Publishing Co., which distributes to banks and savings and loan associations a tabular book called "Improved Payment Table for Monthly Mortgage Loans."

This little book listed almost every monthly payment for just about any conceivable mortgage—but its interest rates went only to 7 per cent. It had to rush a new book into print, eliminating lower rates, adding higher ones.

Financial Publishing is prepared to go even higher, and has in fact published a similar book of tables that goes to 10 per cent. Within recent days the ceiling on government-backed loans was lifted to 7.5 per cent, and some people already have paid more than that.

The book, incidentally, is available for $1 from the publisher at 82 Brookline Ave., Boston, Mass. 02215.

If, then, you decide to postpone buying you deny yourself the pleasure of a new home, especially one that might not again be matched in value, and a buildup—although admittedly slow—of an equity interest.

Rent May Rise

Even more important, from a financial viewpoint, are these factors: Your rent may very well be increased in the next year or so, and the price of that house you postponed buying almost certainly will rise.

During the past year houses in some sections of the country have risen 10 per cent, even more, meaning that last year's $32,000 home is probably now in the $35,000 range and still rising.

In dollars and cents, there-

Airline Sets Mark Despite Bad Weather

Air Wisconsin freight operations set a new single month record in January with 83,519 pounds transported. The previous record was last October with 81,048 pounds.

The record amount is nearly four times the poundage carried in January, 1968.

The airline carried 6,014 passengers during the month, the third highest monthly total in its history, and almost 2,000 passengers more than January a year ago.

Both marks were reached despite January weather which halted all air operations for several days, according to Air Wisconsin officials.

The Minneapolis-St. Paul and Detroit routes were credited with providing the big increase in air freight.

Southbound passengers totaled 3,154 and northbound was 2,860. A total of 144,800 route miles were flown. Because of the weather, only 84 per cent of the scheduled 688 flights were flown.

Pair Happily Gets Bounced Out of Club

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — James Hill and Mary Winston have been drummed out of PWP—but happily.

The two married recently and that automatically disqualified them from membership in the group known as Parents Without Partners.

Jim, at 34, had two sons and five daughters, Mary, 39, had a daughter and four sons. Now, together, they have 12. The eldest is 21, the youngest seven.

They met at a Parents Without Partners dance last August and got along well together right from the start.

But it was the children who pushed the marriage bit. Mary says one of her boys looked at Jim one night and said: "I wouldn't mind having you for a father."

Then, another time, one of his daughters looked at Mary and said: "Dad, why don't you marry her?"

So he did—at the Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd in the Philadelphia suburb of King of Prussia. The girls were bridesmaids, the boys ushers—including two of Mary's sailor sons.

Vandals Damage Cars At Gustman Chevrolet

KAUKAUNA — Approximately $165 damage was done to 12 cars parked in a display lot at Gustman Chevrolet Sales, 222 Lawe St., sometime Friday night.

Outside mirrors were bent and antennas on cars broken. According to the owners, about $150 damage was done to the cars a week ago Friday, but the incident was not reported to police.

force, it would seem that the person who bought now, even at high mortgage rates, could do better than the person who postpones.

For some buyers the ideal situation under these circumstances is to take over an existing mortgage from the seller at somewhere between 5 per cent and 6 per cent, perhaps even avoiding closing costs in the process.

But aside from such ideal situations, most buyers are today faced with a problem that only they can work out.

Markets Closed By Heavy Snow

Stock Exchanges Fail to Open Due to Weather

NEW YORK (AP) — Business was brought to a virtual standstill today in this money capital of the world by an Eastern snowstorm that cut off the city from its suburbs and prevented many businessmen from getting to work.

The New York and American stock exchanges closed as did all the commodity exchanges in the city and the National Association of Securities Dealers. Brokerage firms were operating with skeleton staffs.

Other major exchanges in the country, however, were unaffected by the weather.

It was the first time the New York Stock Exchange had closed for a full day as a result of bad weather, although the exchange has had late openings or early closings several times in the past because of snow, a spokesman said. In 1948 when the exchange held two - hour trading sessions on Saturdays, the exchange was closed on Saturday, Jan. 3, due to a snowstorm.

The American Stock Exchange said the last time it closed for a full day because of weather was in 1918—when trading was done outdoors.

Both exchanges attributed today's closings to lack of personnel. The American exchange said its trading floor was about 10 to 15 per cent manned.

The commodity exchanges which closed included the New York Cocoa, New York Coffee and Sugar, Commodity Exchange, Inc.; New York Mercantile, New York Cotton, New York Produce, Wool Associates and Citrus Associates.

Salomon Brothers & Hutzler, national investment firm, said bids will be taken as scheduled in the Treasury Bill auction this afternoon for Thursday deliveries, but there will be no cash trading in government bonds today. The firm said technically there will be trading in municipal bonds today but no trading in corporates.

Satellite Aloft Over Pacific

Craft Has Potential To Speed Messages To Vietnam Troops

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)

— The most powerful communications spacecraft yet developed by the Western world hovered high over the Pacific Ocean today, the herald for a new era when small combat units on front lines can speed messages via satellite.

The $30 million experimental craft, called TACCOMSAT for Tactical Communications Satellite, might be used by U.S. forces in Southeast Asia if it passes a test program expected to take several months.

The 1,600-pound payload rocketed atop a powerful Titan 3C rocket Sunday into a spot 22,300 miles over the equator off the west coast of South America. At that altitude, the satellite's orbital speed matches Earth's rotation to keep the payload in a seemingly stationary position over the Galapagos Islands.

With a cluster of antennae sticking out the top of a soup-can-shaped body, the two-story-tall spacecraft was designed to test the feasibility of using satellites to mobile military units can communicate over great distances.

Its size permits enough power for ground forces to use portable lightweight receiving antennae as small as one foot in diameter. This would allow rear headquarters to warn front line troops, for example, and small patrol boats to contact a shore base over long distances.

Lt. Gen. John W. O'Neill, commander of the Air Force space and missile systems organization which developed TACCOMSAT, said there is no plan "at the moment" to use the craft in Vietnam, "but we do have the capacity to move it, should that be required."

Sources said the payload probably would be shifted nearer Southeast Asia if it passed the testing program.

Nixon's Middle East Plan Has Its Dangers

Failure Could Make Russians Reluctant To Cooperate in Control of Arms Race

BY ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK WASHINGTON — President Nixon's quick decision to talk to the Russians on the Middle East crisis is only the opening gambit in a fascinating but dangerous game of power politics he is now sketching out with his national security advisers.

Mrs. Nixon is well aware that the Soviet Union is becoming compulsive in its desire to negotiate with the U. S. — not on the Arab-Israeli confrontation, but on control of the escalating arms race.

President Nixon, however, puts heavier emphasis on the danger of another Middle Eastern war, which might suck in the two super-powers on opposite sides. To Mr. Nixon, the question of arms control, while important, is not so lethal a time bomb as the possible breakdown of the fragile truce between Israel and the surrounding Arab states.

Accordingly the Nixon game is to test Soviet willingness to do serious business with the Americans in the imminent United Nations talks on a settlement of the 1967 war. If of New York, and has transmitted a number of messages to administration officials now be lieve is possible — a willingness to agree on a Middle East settlement that both sides could accept — President Nixon will proceed from there to talks on the control of arms, particularly new defensive and offensive nuclear systems. Bold and imaginative though it is, this plan is fraught with danger. In particular, a deadlock in the U. S.-Soviet talks at the UN could so sour relations that later negotiations on arms control would be seriously threatened.

But the President is willing to accept that risk in return for the enormous gains that might result from a successful negotiation on the Middle East. Moreover, Mr. Nixon is convinced that an easing of the vicious Arab-Israeli antagonisms is essential. Otherwise, an outbreak of hostilities going far beyond the present cycle of Arab guerrilla attack and Israeli reprisal is a possibility.

Furthermore, Mr. Nixon tells intimates he is getting worried over signs of anti-Israeli feelings in this country. He is not alone. The last major Israeli reprisal against civilian Arab aircraft at the Beirut, Lebanon, airport last month — a retaliation for the loss of an Israeli life in an Arab terrorist attack in Athens — caused an angry response in the U.S.

Fear 'Imposed' Peace Neither the government of Israel nor the Jewish community here favors the U. S.-Soviet talks at the UN. What bothers them is the possibility that the super-powers are preparing to "impose" a peace.

To deal with this, Mr. Nixon has held a number of private talks with leading U. S. Jews, including Sen. Jacob K. Javits, first move in the scenario of the Israeli government in Jerusalem.

He has stressed two things: first, the U. S. will not be party to an "imposed" peace unacceptable to Israel and will underwrite any agreement acceptable to both sides; second, no matter what agreements are made with the Russians on stopping the arms flow to the Middle East, there will be no change in the delivery schedule of 50 F-4 aircraft to Israel (to be started the end of this year).

Javits, it is known, had a lengthy private conversation with both the President and his chief national security adviser, Dr. Henry Kissinger, last Friday in the White House. Javits strongly urged Mr. Nixon to tell the Russians at the outset of the UN talks that the U. S. would never allow the Middle East to be absorbed into the Communist sphere, either by direct Soviet action or by the action of Egypt and her Arab allies. He agreed.

At the same time, the President said he has sent the Israelis an urgent warning on reprisal raids against the Arabs during UN negotiations. Mr. Nixon is fearful that the cycle of raid and counter-raid could get out of hand and foil the talks.

Against that background, the President's decision on U. S.-Soviet Middle East talks is the first move in the scenario of power politics now opening. On the outcome hangs not only peace in the Middle East and eventual agreement on arms control but perhaps the whole direction of Mr. Nixon's bold foreign policy. (Copyright 1969)

Marquette Medical School Court May Rule on Legality of State Aids

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau MADISON — Test votes and debate in the State Assembly last week showed that the legislature apparently is willing to arrange a trial in the State Supreme Court to determine whether it can legally subsidize financially a troubled Marquette

School of Medicine in Milwaukee. Assemblymen put off a final vote on a $1,000 appropriation to the school to provide the cause for the legal test, but said they would act finally next Wednesday after some members said they had amendments they wanted voted upon.

A strong bipartisan bloc of legislators is backing the proposition, arguing that the school is needed to provide physicians in Neenah, a Republican, are the this doctor-short state, and that the alternative would be the expenditure of $100,000,000 for a new state medical school in backing for the measure when it Milwaukee and a delay of 10 years in getting it into operation. Marquette Medical School Court May Rule on Legality of State Aids

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau MADISON — Test votes and debate in the State Assembly last week showed that the legislature apparently is willing to arrange a trial in the State Supreme Court to determine whether it can legally subsidize financially a troubled Marquette School of Medicine in Milwaukee.

Assemblymen put off a final vote on a $1,000 appropriation to the school to provide the cause for the legal test, but said they would act finally next Wednesday after some members said they had amendments they wanted voted upon.

State support for Marquette School of Medicine, which is now a private corporation disingenuous Co., 809 W. College Ave., where windows in an ly, was recommended by a special task force on medical school training facilities last year, and has the endorsement of Gov. Warren P. Knowles.

A strong bipartisan bloc of legislators is backing the proposition, arguing that the school is needed to provide physicians in Neenah, a Republican, are the this doctor-short state, and that the alternative would be the expenditure of $100,000,000 for a new state medical school in backing for the measure when it Milwaukee and a delay of 10 years in getting it into operation. Procedures for Second Court To be Topic

Waupaca County Board to Meet in Single-Day Session

WAUPACA — Representatives of the Waupaca County Bar Association are expected to discuss procedures for a second branch of the Waupaca County Court during the county board's single-day session starting at 10 a.m. Tuesday.

A second county judge will be elected on April 1. In the past the county board and bar association have been at odds over the second judgeship with the board opposing the new post and the bar association supporting the idea.

Also scheduled to appear before the board is Rex Oatman, state conservation warden.

Oatman is expected to report on the problems the county is having with its abundant deer herd which has been reduced sharply by packs of dogs chasing and killing deer and with possible starvation because of the weather.

Action may be necessary if the county is to retain its title as the top deer hunting county in the state, which has resulted in increasing income from hunters from outside the area.

The Waupaca Foundation was created to finance the project which will cost $5,000 plus son expenses.

Elmer J. Dushek, president, said, "if each organization would contribute $250 the problem would be solved quickly. Area businesses also are being asked to contribute. This is a project which will benefit everyone in Waupaca. Contributions may be made

Expanded Sales or Higher Special Taxation Preferable, Task Force Chairman Says in Milwaukee Talk

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The task force says Wisconsin must be cautious about increasing income taxes if it hopes to make industrial leaders feel at home.

Curtis W. Tarr, whose task force is studying local government operations, said an expanded sales tax, or higher special taxes—such as those on vehicles, might be preferable to raising income taxes.

The Lawrence University president spoke Saturday at a meeting of the American Automobile Association's Wisconsin division, and was among task force members during a televised interview Sunday.

Nonpartisan Support He said his committee's recommendations are getting widespread nonpartisan support, and that its legislative proposals, particularly those involving distribution of state aid and shared taxes, will lead to "more of a rural-urban split than a political party matter."

Task force member Richard N. Gill predicted "inevitable compromises" in the proposals as a result of what he said would be objections to recommendations for distribution of state aids.

Some communities, Gill said, will lose money while others gain.

Tarr said he hopes the haves and have-nots will understand the importance of the new formula.

"I think many people in the suburbs realize that the problems of Milwaukee are their problems," he said.

Tarr said any tax change should reflect an understanding of a need to preserve and encourage an industrial atmosphere.

High Taxation "No one state exceeds Wisconsin in taxes on personal income," he said, urging a conservative approach to increases that might dissuade industrialists from settling in Wisconsin.

As an example, he said, some New York industries have little choice but to stay in that city while "there are alternatives to operating in Kenosha."

ing reported a potential state deficit by June, and having asked the state legislature for a record $16 billion in the subsequent biennium, has suggested lawmakers increase taxes.

The Republican governor's proposed increases include sales taxes and income taxes. His income tax recommendations do not affect the highest levels of the state's tax rate.

Tarr said sales taxes might be the best field for increases while easing the load on the personal property tax. Also, he said, automobiles are taxed below the levels of most other states.

Need for Austerity Another answer, he said is for the legislature to reduce agency spending, with citizens

Friends, Neighbors Pay Homage

Big 'Thank You' for Dr. Towne

Post-Crescent Staff Writer HORTONVILLE — "We'll be loving you always."

This is how a community showed its appreciation to Dr. William H. Towne for administering to the pains and ills of this area's people during an illustrious 62-year medical career.

It also was a tribute to a warm, considerate human being, a neighbor, and most of all a man whom the children of a community can attempt to emulate and the adults can call friend and confidant.

Dr. Donald Bravick, chief of staff at Appleton Memorial Hospital, told the gathering that "Doc Towne" exemplified something that could disappear from the medical profession.

"Dr. Towne made medicine a personal matter with his compassion, understanding, wit and humor. The possibility exists for medicine to become a cold business," Dr. Bravick said.

Bravick said, "Dr. Towne's service enriched his own soul."

Uncommon Man Dr. Edward Mielke, Appleton, called Dr. Towne, "An uncommon man, a leader."

"Dr. Towne was dedicated to his work. At times he should have been in a hospital bed himself, but was traveling by horse and cutter to deliver a baby," Dr. Mielke said.

"He had the gift of favorably affecting the lives of almost everyone he came in contact with," his long time friend said.

Dr. Mielke quoted Robert Louis Stevenson about "physicians being above the common herd." His question to the crowd of who was their uncommon man brought a thunderous response "Dr. Towne" from the throng.

Another old friend and associate, Dr. John W. Monsted, was unable to appear as scheduled because of unexpected circumstances.

Baby on Way Dr. Monsted phoned a message stating he had an expectant mother who was about to deliver in two hours and he would be unable to appear.

Dr. Towne, responsible for bringing over 4,000 babies into the world during his 87 years, gave an appreciative nod as the message was read.

Monroe Manley, an acquaintance of 46 years, recalled the early years of Dr. Towne when he was stationed in Shiocton.

"What more can be said of a man than that he has patience, compassion and generosity . . .," Manley said.

"Thank you — for all of you people and all you have done," Dr. Towne said.

He added, "I've enjoyed my work, it's always a pleasure to me to help somebody. Work is my business."

The day brought fond memories for Dr. Towne and many of his senior patients. Dr. Towne, accompanied by an old friend, Wilbur Hoier, arrived in a 1929 Dodge sedan, piloted by Eugene Gitter.

He then transferred to a horse drawn cutter reminiscent of his early days in medicine when the horse was the most common means of making house calls.

Band members, all Dr. Towne babies, escorted Dr. Towne down the hallway playing "For He's A Jolly Good Fellow."

Sister Denise, Mercy Hospital, Oshkosh, the former Mildred McHugh, and a Dr. Towne baby, opened the event with a prayer.

Caring Is Involvement, Christ Fellowship Told

CLINTONVILLE — There is a gap between what we say on Sunday and what we practice on Monday, the Women's Christian Fellowship of Christ Congregational Church was told by a noted minister who works with racial crisis in Milwaukee.

Speaking on "Facing a New Day in the Inner City," was the Rev. Dr. William Edge, pastor of Plymouth Congregational United Church of Christ, Milwaukee and chairman of the board of directors, Wisconsin conference, UCC.

Cristians everywhere intellectually accept the idea of brotherhood of man but when it comes to putting it in practice, the threat to our own prestige causes a gap between Sunday and Monday, he said.

From his own experience with racial tensions in the inner city, Dr. Edge pointed out not only the challenges but the signs of hope in what he termed a threatening situation.

Bridge Gap

He felt that the only way to bridge that gap was to become involved in people — not as superiors to inferiors, but as equals to equals — in terms of human values. So his church, along with a Methodist and a Presbyterian church cooperated with two store-front churches in a community center project called "Youth, Inc."

This center is in the downtown area of Milwaukee where the people from the so-called "white" churches worked along with the people in the neighborhood and shared in educational and recreational projects. By this involvement, the

Strong Fox Cities Unit Needs County Boundary Changes

Lower Fox, Wolf Not Included In Warnings of Possible Danger

Realigning county boundaries or merging Calumet, Winnabago and Outagamie counties appear to be essential if the Fox Cities is going to become a single strong political unit, top industrial and community leaders suggested Friday afternoon.

And the Tarr Task Force Section calling for strengthening counties will act only to divide further the Neenah-Menasha area from Appleton and other Outagamie communities, they decided.

A close scrutiny of the Tarr report on local government reorganization brought out these points Friday afternoon in the second of six informal seminars at Lawrence University on the ways to build a more cohesive Fox Cities.

Assemblyman David O. Martin, R-Neenah, said he saw "very little (in the Tarr report) that will directly aid the Neenah-Menasha area." But he was not critical of its possible statewide effects, he added.

Possible Solution

Martin drew agreement when he said a change in county lines possibly to include Neenah-Menasha in the Outagamie area could be the approach.

"It's essential to realign to give county governments more power along functional lines," he said, noting Neenah-Menasha is tied more closely in economics to the Fox Cities than Winnebago.

Martin also made it clear he and Assembly Speaker Harold Froehlich, R-Appleton, have not given up the idea of merging the three counties, although he admitted portions of Calumet probably should not be tied to this area.

Noting lack of support when the proposal was introduced a year ago, he continued: "More support must come from the bottom up."

Need Discussions

He said community groups, town, and county officials and then legislators must begin discussing it. "We planted the seed but it hasn't grown too fast," he commented.

Martin, who said he was in the "horns of a dilemma" on whether to support the Tarr report, was critical that it gave no alternate taxing methods to the localities. This would have helped relieve property taxes but instead the report would add to the burden with a tax on autos, which are personal property.

The assemblyman said that he "will attempt to view the Tarr report objectively and on what it will do for the entire state."

Mrs. Bertrand A. Goldgar and Mrs. Arch Hoffman, both of Appleton, and Veldor Kopitzke of the Fox Valley Campus economics staff, said that people of a region just consider what is best for the most people and not necessarily for a small neighborhood or other segment.

They called for a strong Fox Cities county and growth that will be orderly and include long-range programs. They had high praises for the Tarr report in general.

Keeping Pace With Public System

Tuition to Go Up at Xavier As Teacher Salaries Rise

An increase of $85 in tuition at Xavier High School to help put the salaries of teachers in line with public schools, was announced this week by Xavier officials.

In a letter to the parents of eighth grade pupils who may attend Xavier and to parish priests, the Xavier school board announced that an across-the-board increase of $85 is planned for 1969.

The rates are pending the parish acceptance of a $10 increase in their assistance. If the letter states, the tuition will be increased another $10. At the same time, the tuition will be slightly reduced to meet instructional costs, however, as well as administration and extra-curriculars will be the same — possibly a little less.

Keep Quality

"We wish to keep a quality school with experienced teachers. We hope to be able to say that we are not going to have a tuition raise the year after the year," the letter states.

"We have tried to keep expenses at a minimum. There are no 'extras' in the budget. Tuition and parish assistance are the only sources of real income," it is added.

It also adds that until help can come, through such agencies as the Citizens' for Education Freedom which is proposing aid from the state, Xavier "must go on our own."

Salary Increases

"The greatest raise in tuition is caused by salary increases from $205.220 to $258.832. This does not include benefits such as social security," the letter reads.

"This will mean that all religious will receive $2,500 instead of $1,625, according to the Green Bay Diocesan School Board approval. Lay faculty members will be coming close to the pay scale of the Appleton Public School System. The starting salary will be $6,500; it was $6,000 this year. This year in the Appleton system the schedule began at $6,500 and is

Youths Take Beer and Flee

Pizza Restaurant Employe Chases Pair, Catches One

A 17-year-old west side Appleton youth was apprehended following an early Friday evening on-foot pursuit after he and a companion were seen taking a case of beer from the back room of Frank & Pat's Pizza Palace, 815 W. College Ave.

Allen C. Gasper, also 17, an employee, saw the youths when he went to the backroom to prepare food. He began the pursuit which went north on Locust Street and west on Washington Street.

One youth was caught near Bennett Street when he fell, but his companion escaped.

Gasper said he saw the boys ditch the beer in the alley, where it was recovered.

The police were called and the youth was released to his parents. Juvenile Bureau authorities are continuing investigation.

Juvenile Bureau detectives also are investigating a report by a west side woman that she knew of 13 six packs and three cases of beer in the basement of a nearby home where youngsters gather. The beer was brought to the police station.

An employee of Mid-City Beer Depot, 510 N. Oneida St., reported Friday night that a young lad was seen taking a case of beer from a delivery truck on the east side.

Only Another Cat Can Tell

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Was Tabby a male or female?

The owners said it was a female and they weren't going to pay the veterinarian $233 for boarding and fixing the broken leg of a male cat that wasn't theirs.

The dispute was resolved in a local justice of the peace court where Magistrate Kathryn Mautz ruled the feline before her was a female, and the owners must pay a compromise bill of $173.

Even "experts," declared the judge, sometimes make mistakes when it comes to determining the sex of cats.

"Ultimately, the people must be the ones to demand fewer services," he said.

Tax Foundation Inc. of New York, a private research organization, issued a biennial report Saturday, listing Wisconsin ninth among the states according to taxes per resident.

The group said Wisconsin dropped to ninth because of the lack of a tax increase in Knowles' budget two years ago.

Wisconsin's state and local tax burden per resident rose 90 per cent between 1957 and 1967, the 11th fastest increase among the states in that 10-year period, the corporation said.

The group said that in 1967, Wisconsin state and local taxes per $1,000 of personal income averaged $120, compared with $85 in Illinois, $109 in Michigan, $123 in Minnesota and $132 in New York.

U.N. Discrimination Against Americans

The United Nations is a major employer. It is supposed to hire people on a quota system according to the population and appropriations of the 126 member nation. But as far as Americans are concerned, it doesn't work out that way.

Despite a considerable number of applications from Americans fresh out of universities or the Peace Corps, the United Nations continues to hire more people from countries already well over their quota. The United States is supposed to have between 361 and 552 in non-clerical positions at the U.N. but it currently had just 360. India, on the other hand, supposed to have between 26 and 31, now has 65. Other countries considerably over supplied are Czechoslovakia, the United Arab Republic and some Latin American nations. The Soviet union, like the United States, is short of its supposed quota.

No one has satisfactorily explained why Americans, obviously more available, are being scrubbed for the positions. Raymond Nasher, an American member of the fifth committee which deals with staff policies, says that "literally hundreds of American citizens — many of them leaders in professions in short supply in the United Nations — have submitted applications in the United Nations over the last year" but that only a handful have been accepted. Officials in Washington have submitted names of at least 200 and the United States delegation has suggested another hundred. But applicants get discouraged when they wait months without getting an answer.

There is a need for younger members in United Nations posts to replace those who are retiring. And obviously there is no reason at all for discrimination against Americans.

Overpopulation in the Philippines

The streets of most of the major cities of Asia appear appallingly crowded to the casual Western visitor. The overpopulation combined with an immense underemployment is the most serious problem that faces most of Asia, according to Gunnar Myrdal who made an exhaustive study of that continent. And the overpopulation is the cause of much of the underemployment.

But even among Asian cities, Manila stands out in the near chaos of its crowds.

Manila and its suburbs have six million people. Housing is vastly inadequate. The confusion of traffic is almost unbelievable. Although the jeepneys, colorful adaptations of the American jeeps, must be licensed specifically for the city and the various suburbs even to enter, they are far too many for the often narrow streets. To get around the horse drawn calesas, the jeepney drivers often go over sidewalks, lawns and back yards. Every evening and morning there are hours long tie-ups of buses, jeepneys and calesas.

But the real seriousness of the Philippine overpopulation comes with a look at the economic growth rate. It is averaging now about 5 per cent annually and the government has been making extensive efforts to increase it. The United States still has special agreements with the Philippines so as to enable their goods to enter the United States at a more favorable rate than most foreign goods. The Philippines only a year ago began far more extensive trade with Japan as the hatreds born of the war faded away. But the increase in the population rate is almost 4 per cent a year. The Philippines are barely keeping ahead and the improvement in standards is too small to ease the tensions of a people who, like other Asians, are finding out what better living is in other parts of the world.

President Marcos has put emphasis upon education, roads and agriculture, sound policies. A considerable number of small rural and village schools have been built with cooperation of local authorities and the federal government. Assistance of United States agriculture experts led to the development of a new strain of rice particularly adapted to Philippine growth conditions. The work on the roads is sadly inadequate but they are improving. But with a whopping 30 per cent of the federal budget allocated to education, the government is still unable to meet the demands for new schoolrooms, teachers and other educational facilities. The reputation of Philippine higher education is far below that of many other Asian nations.

The United States aid program in Manila, under an agreement with the National Economic Council, did establish a population planning program a year ago and there was an appropriation for 1968. But a study indicated that the program had little impact and would not unless the government of the Philippines really got behind it. This is particularly delicate both because of the amount of anti-Americanism growing in the Philippines today, although not on an official level, and Pope Paul's recent encyclical on contraceptives.

Statistics have shown that birth rates no longer seem to have much to do with the religious affiliations of the people. The affluent and the better educated nations of the world have lower birth rates than the underdeveloped. But the Philippines is the only predominantly Roman Catholic nation in Asia. And to date the Philippines is the only Asian nation without a government sponsored program aimed at population control. In the years ahead — the crisis years according to C. P. Snow — this reluctance of the Philippine government to inaugurate a population control program could have tragic results.

Alliance for Progress and Columbia

Back in 1961 Columbia was chosen to be sort of a showcase for the Alliance for Progress assistance to Latin American nations inaugurated by President John F. Kennedy. Now Senator Fulbright has charged that the whole program not only has "fallen far short" of the aims but may even have "contributed to the postponement" of economic and social reforms in Columbia.

The economic aid totalled $732 million over the seven year period. However, while the aim was an increase of the gross national product of 2.5 per cent, the actual growth was only 1.2 per cent, from $276 per person to $295. The agrarian land reform program, considered an important factor in trying to change economic conditions in most underdeveloped nations, provided land to some 54,000 landless families but there are more than 400,000 such families and their number is increasing. Functional illiterates have increased from 5 to 6 million. The Columbian government did increase taxes but made little effort to collect them — also a problem in other parts of Latin America. A study, prepared by the staff of Senator Fulbright's Foreign Relations Committee in cooperation with the General Accounting Office, reported that Columbia's social structure remains "essentially unchanged" and that almost two-thirds of the population do not participate "in the economic and political decision making process."

Senator Fulbright for some time has been a strong advocate of doing away with most unilateral American foreign aid and funneling funds instead through international agencies such as the World Bank, the Inter-American Development Bank or the United Nations Special Fund. Such a change would serve the double purpose of assuring the careful requirements of those agencies rather than programs aimed primarily at increasing exports from the United States as sometimes happens now, and avoiding the resentment of the United States which most recipient countries seem to develop. However, we fail to understand how such a change would be much more successful in bringing about economic, social and political changes in Latin America.

It can be argued that Latin American leaders know their people and their problems far better than do North Americans. We do not have the same traditions of government, religion or economics. But the slipping back into reliance upon military regimes alone is an indication of retrogression in many Latin American nations. Temporarily there may be a modicum of law and order. But the dangers of explosive violence — often easily exploited by Communist elements — are still there.

There is no way to determine how Latin America would have developed in the last decade without the aid of the Alliance For Progress. But certainly the program has not succeeded in the way it was envisioned.

The Fun of Serving

A little imagination can go a long way, especially when that imagination can be captured by others and inspires them. An example is the honors service club of Madison Junior High School.

All that the members of the club do is serve — working in the school bookstore and lost and found, helping in the office and monitoring the halls. The job even may require extra time for ushering at school activities in the evenings. Club members are giving up some of their study time to help the school.

Yet the 35 members of the organization had to be chosen from applicants totalling twice that number last fall. Many consider their service fun, while their faculty adviser talks about developing responsibility, confidence and learning to organize one's time when she speaks of the program.

Club members wear a green blazer with the school insignia on the pocket while on duty, but that's scarcely reason for them to give up their time to serve. Part of the answer lies in the prestige which goes with club membership. Part of it lies in the willingness of teen-agers to help when given the chance. But an important part was the imagination of school officials who initiated such a program and gave students a chance to help their school. That imagination has been communicated successfully to the honor service club members . . . and everyone concerned has benefited.

Real Problem in Middle East Is Instability of Arab Governments

BY JOSEPH KRAFT

WASHINGTON — Daily incidents give the impression the Middle East is on the verge of a military explosion. But in fact, the imminent danger to stability lies in political disintegration of the Arab regimes under the challenge of the Palestinian commandos or fedayeen.

The new American approach is to meet that danger by saving the bacon of the regime in Cairo. But it is a sharp question whether that approach can be anything more than a quick fix, condemned to failure because it does not deal with the true pacesetters of the Arab world — the Palestinians.

The military situation is controlled now, and for some time to come, by Israeli superiority on the ground. There are no indications that officials of the Arab governments are fixing for a fight. On the contrary, even their most bellicose statements are of the "I'll get him, if you hold my coat," variety.

SOVIETS PEACEABLE

To be sure, the Soviets are now present in large numbers as military advisers to the Egyptian army. But the last thing the Russians want is another military flare-up. A good guide to their attitude lies in a little-noticed incident that took place at the end of the six-day war of 1967 between Israel and the Arab states.

On the final day, in a hot line message to the White House, the Soviet Union threatened dire consequences unless the Israeli forces were halted. Washington's response was to order the Sixth Fleet to steam towards the eastern end of the Mediterranean. As soon as the fleet moved, the Russians stopped their threats.

In this situation, the activist role has passed to the Palestinians. Their instrument has been the commando raids and sabotage conducted against Israel, particularly in the occupied territories of the Gaza Strip and the West Bank of the Jordan. These actions have only mildly discomfited Israel.

But they have been a major embarrassment to the Arab states. For by their show of action, the commandos have engaged the sympathies of Palestinian refugees and young militants all over the Arab world. At the same time, the Palestinians have shown up the weakness of the existing Arab governments.

Already Palestinian elements have acquired preponderant influence in the Jordan of King Hussein. The public hangings in Iraq two weeks ago were, at least in part, an effort by the regime to head off a challenge from internal forces sympathetic to the Palestinian cause. Most importantly, pro-Palestinian elements seem to have taken the offensive against the Nasser regime in Egypt.

NASSER'S TIME SHORT

Thus there has been unrest at the universities and in the army by left-wing students and radical officers. Last week in Cairo, elements sympathetic to the Palestinian cause took out of the hands of the official Egyptian sponsors an international conference on Arab solidarity. And Colonel Nasser has told some recent visitors that he can last only a few more months.

The danger to the Nasser regime is apparently what inspired the Soviet Union to move towards a settlement in the Middle East in December. The Russians hoped that, by forcing international action to end the Israeli occupation, they could blunt the challenge of the Palestinians, and thus save the Nasser regime — and with it, the Soviet stake in the Middle East.

The Nixon administration is now moving to accept the Soviet gambit. Four-power talks in the context of the United Nations are a step in the roll-back of the Israelis which is essential to the survival of the Nasser regime. And resumption of relations between Washington and Cairo would strengthen the Colonel still further.

No doubt that approach can lead to an easing of the immediate pressure — the pressure that is on Colonel Nasser — in the Middle East. But it is hard to see that it can have enduring results.

For the real problem lies with the Palestinians. To raise up Colonel Nasser may obscure them for the moment. But they will keep knocking on the door of history until some disposition is made of their claims. And the American interest is not in some quick fix that makes the problem seem to go away temporarily. It is to live with the problem until Arab politics evolve to the point where the Palestinians can play a role not merely as terrorists but as parties to a settlement. (Copyright, 1969)

English Melodrama Coming

Quoted from the Appleton Post for Feb. 11, 1869.

The old English Melodrama, in two acts, entitled "The Mistletoe Bough or The Fatal Chest" will be given on Friday evening the 26th inst., in Bertschy's Hall.

Some of the dramatis personae are those who took part in "The Drunkard" last winter.

New scenery has been provided and appropriate costumes engaged at considerable expense, and no pains will be spared to make it the finest entertainment of the kind ever given.

The entertainment will coincide with the laughable farce, "The Limerick Boy."

The entire proceeds will be donated to the Episcopal Church of this place, which is in great need of funds. (Grace Episcopal Church).

Admission is 25 cents and tickets are at Turner & Fernandez.

Large Proposal Caught Headlines but That Is All It Will Ever Do

By JOHN WYNGAARD
MADISON — In one of the first and obvious bids for publicity in the new session of the legislature, Sen. Gerald Lorge of Bear Creek has scored impressively with his demand that the legislature at some distant time — presumably when he has retired from his seat — should be considerably reduced in numbers.

It is the kind of a proposition that is virtually fool-proof as a publicity generator in the early days of a legislative year when other news of substantive merit is relatively scarce. It is also the kind of proposal that gets an automatic nod of acceptance from many persons who have a latent, although sometimes unconscious, prejudice against representative government. Others feel that it is a good way to save money. None of these has much merit for the thoughtful onlooker for a number of reasons.

MUST CONSIDER CITIZENS

First, there is no necessary relationship between efficiency and size in a legislative body unless it grows to unreasonable proportions. Nor should mechanical efficiency be the measuring stick of the worth of a legislature. The test should be its representative character. Are all of the regions and economic interests given a fair chance for the expression of their views and wishes in the legislative process? That should be the criterion of the organization.

Lorge would tie legislative apportionment to congressional districts, rather than to counties, which has been the historic rule in Wisconsin. But there is no assurance of a community of interest in congressional districting. It is purely a matter of adjusting the map to the population statistics at 10-year intervals. An urban outpost could be smothered in an agricultural district or an agricultural minority would have its voice snuffed out in an urban district under the formula that Lorge suggests.

The county may not be the perfect ingredient for the formation of legislative districts, but it has the advantage of simplicity, as in election administration, and of tradition and custom. It dates from the earliest days of statehood and follows a rule that is commonly accepted in the country at large.

The most mistaken of the arguments for such a drastic reduction in the numerical size of the lawmaking body is the conviction of some persons that it would save tax money. The cost of the legislature is now so little in the vast apparatus of government that it is expressed in fractions of one per cent.

Any economy would be the equivalent, under the Lorge plan, of getting rid of 40 to 50 middle-bracket state employees. It would be quickly countermanded by the growth of the bureaucracy which is already expanding at a substantially more rapid rate. The difference is that the legislature is highly visible, generously publicized, constantly in the public eye. The vast and anonymous administrative service is largely out of sight and out of mind.

While the sideline may admire Sen. Lorge's aptitude for seizing on a subject that will attract attention, he must cite the best and final reason why that will be the only result: the legislature, if it continues to be composed of frail humankind, is not likely to be elected that will pass a proposition knocking out a substantial part of its own membership.

RECALLS OLD STORY

The proposal recalls to mind the often-told tale of the leadership of the State Senate which once agreed to remove a senator from a seat he coveted on a principal standing committee.

The leadership committee deliberated the matter at length, and finally agreed. Then one of them demanded: "But who is going to tell him?"

The upshot was that the senator was not removed.

If Sen. Lorge's plan for a pruning of the legislature sometime in the 1970s ever comes up to a vote, the response will be the same. It is not in the nature of the politician to cast a vote that may abolish his own seat, at worst, or those of his friends, at best.

Harris Is a Reform Evangelical Druid

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

After a column of mine about Jesus appeared in the paper around Christmas, a woman called and asked me what religion I professed. I told her I was a Reform Evangelical Druid. She didn't seem to know what that was.

We Druids — small in number, but ardent in faith — have a most peculiar theology, but it seems to work for us. Most of the time.

We don't think it's important if you "believe" in God — as long as God believes in you.

And there is only one way to make Him believe in you — to be as selfish as possible at all times. This means to want whatever is best for you, and you alone, in every situation.

If you are truly, deeply, unremittingly and wholly selfish, you are saved. We don't know what you are saved for, but that is none of our business. That is God's business, and we don't interfere in it.

Now, the art of being selfish seems to most people to be the easiest thing in the world, but that delusion is just a trap of Satan. Pure unadulterated selfishness is about the hardest thing in the world to accomplish, and it often takes a lifetime of unceasing effort.

In order to be genuinely selfish, you have to want what is best for the self, and to do what is best for the self. This implied knowing what is best for the self — and this is what makes Druidism so hard.

To be a Druid in good standing (even a non-Reform un-Evangelical one), you first of all have to understand the nature of man. You have to know that he was designed for something, just as an acorn is designed to be an oak tree.

If you properly understand the nature of man, even in part, then you know that the basic need, and the basic aim, of your true self is to become as human as it is possible to be. The only way your self can ever be satisfied is by turning its potentiality for humanhood into act.

Next, you have to understand what it means to become as human as possible: how the reason and the will and the appetites work together, how man can live and control his humanness without falling into the error of angelism on the one hand or bestiality on the other.

When you have mastered this knowledge — which involves retraining the emotions as much as the mind — then you are ready to become the most selfish person in the world, doing only those things which are of benefit to your true self. This is why we are such a small sect.

Parents Let Teachers Bring Up Their Children; Look What's Happened

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

In September, you published a letter written by a student, Bonnie Greening. In it she asked, "What kind of a school system is it that allows teachers to make statements which drive a student away from their religion and home background — straight toward premarital experience — student uprisings — free love and everything that common sense tells us is wrong?" "Is this supposedly educated person to be allowed to go on teaching such trash?"

Something is wrong when a student has to cry for help from parents and public. Nation's Business magazine recently printed an article which asks — "Why, when we are pouring millions and millions into education, are we reaping such poor results?" Is this an accident?

The trouble started when we parents relinquished our rights to the so-called experts who convinced us that we didn't know enough or weren't smart enough to supervise the education of our children. The professional educator was much better equipped and trained to do a better job. Was the constant down-hill run accidental or planned?

1. Phonics was removed — consequently millions of children couldn't spell — and were poor readers. Now we have remedial reading programs. This costs a lot and is doing a job that should have, and could have, been done in the elementary school. (phonics has been re-instated.)

2. Pressure to learn more — faster — that result is ulcers and tranquilizers and "Mixed-up" kids.

3. Is it an accident or is it planned that recommended reading lists contain "trashy" books mentioned by Miss Greening? Our librarian says, "Many are downright dirty and I don't even put them on the shelf."

4. Sex-education — New! Highly recommended! (By the experts) Is this really a good idea? I thought the modern award-winning movies were taking care of that! What happened to reading-writing-and spelling?

Prayers Banned but Sex Promoted — Any wonder the students don't know what to believe? The representatives are working on an expensive Crime Control Bill: What we really need is a school system and teachers that pay more attention to the basic principles expressed in the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the U. S. Then our future leaders would have a better understanding of good citizenship — love or country — a strong spiritual faith and courage. Added to that, of course, we need personal example and good home training.

God gave children to parents — not to the state. Courts hold parents responsible for their actions, and this includes their education. The student's pleas for help should be answered by visiting the school — go to the school board meetings — look into the library (and even some textbooks). The State Department of Public Instruction spends more than half of your taxes — (I don't think we're getting our money's worth) Too much authority has been delegated to the state and too little left to the community. The man who pays the bills should have a little more voice in what he's paying for. Instead, we send it to the state and get part of it back with plenty of strings attached.

On second thought — that expert was right — we're not very smart!

Patriotism Not Involved In Service in Vietnam

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

I would like to take issue with your recent editorial on eliminating the draft, wherein you stated: "It has generally been assumed that the defense of one's nation is something required of all American young men, a responsibility, a duty, that comes with the privilege of being an American." But it is precisely this concept of national defense which is in question at the present time.

If the United States were to be attacked without provocation, as was the case at Pearl Harbor in 1941, there is no doubt in my mind that the vast majority of American men would go to war willingly and without bitterness against their own government.

But this kind of real national defense is not the case in Vietnam just as it was not the case in Korea. In both instances, war became an extension of diplomacy in the worst European tradition. The United States decided to "back" a corrupt Saigon regime rather than let it be overcome by a totalitarian Communist one. The State Department used the same kind of dubious value judgement and held the same smug self-assurance in our natural right to oversee the world that it has expressed so many times in our dealings with the countries of Latin America. The Monroe Doctrine has never been two-sided! And unfortunately for the American soldier, the Asians haven't been quite as easy to deal with as our neighbors to the south. Thousands of American boys are dead or crippled, thousands of American homes miss a loved one who can never be replaced, and for what? These men were helpless pawns in a useless, stupid war. Let's not dignify the slaughter in Vietnam and justify the draft that sent Americans there with empty phrases like "the defense of one's country." It won't work with this generation.

Students Need to be Taught Lesson At Oshkosh in More Ways than One

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

I was very concerned about the disruptive student demonstration on the University Campus of Oshkosh last November. On the other hand, I was not surprised because certain black people and some whites in recent years have used every possible excuse to try to force themselves on others and in some areas changed the status of values, disrupt organization and as everyone knows have destroyed property in almost every section of the country. It's sort of a carry-over of the strong-arm, high-jacking gangster methods of muscling in on business and society. It has been allowed to grow as a result of loose permissive attitudes by many responsible educated people.

The disruptions and riots that upset normal ways of life and the heavy cost to handle these situations is paid for by every American, black or white. Higher taxes and higher living costs will be a couple of the results. Blacks and whites that create these problems menace society. Students are supposed to go to universities to learn and not dictate. Residents of Wisconsin pay a tremendous price to operate and expand their educational system and those that hinder or disrupt the normal way of life should be pushed aside.

Certainly the dismissal of the 94 black students was stern action, but that's what certain situations require. I'm sure it will be a most valuable lesson to all those who really want to get an education. I believe the next chance they get to go back to college, if they so wish wherever it might be, will be with an attitude to flex their brain muscles and not their vocal and body muscles. People learn fast from mistakes.

If blacks want to be better accepted by all whites, they have got to do a better job of selling themselves. It is not implied that black people are troublemakers. I have known some who are very pleasant and capable, however, many go around with a chip on their shoulders.

A college education will generally help every one, but college is not absolutely necessary to be successful. Many well paying hourly jobs require skill and this is something that can be developed through practice and care. People learn through experience and contacts with people, by reading, observing and through free thought and speech. Success depends a good deal on the desire and sacrifice an individual is willing to make. Many with no college education have been very successful.

I don't know too much about the demands of these black students, but I'm sure if they were reasonable and good for the entire student body and providing they didn't cost too much, they would be met at least partially in time. However, new ideas or things that change the normal way of doing things (regardless of how good the idea might be) take time to sell and be accepted. Even many sensational ideas take a lot of hard planning and selling, promoting and patience before acceptance.

Quite some time has elapsed since the November disturbance, but I continued to read in the newspaper of some Oshkosh University students and instructors still participating in stand-in protests for the black students that have left the University. We all know what would happen if these people were protesting members of a football team or employees of a company. Their attitudes would erode and disrupt operations and would be dealt with accordingly. I'm sure that proper steps were taken at Oshkosh when the offending students were asked to leave.

Believes Editorial Ruins Morals of Our Community

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

The editorial on "State Law on Birth Control" has a very bad effect on the morality of this community.

I find it hard to believe that you would really encourage further lowering of Wisconsin's moral standards by telling our young people, "It's fine to have premarital relations."

Have you considered that by making contraceptives readily available in the high school washrooms or nearest vending machine we are giving passive approval to this type of social behavior?

You indicate it will prevent venereal disease and unwanted children. It can only do the opposite, as was demonstrated in Sweden and other countries where birth control laws are wide open, encouraging promiscuity and compounding the problem of illegitimacy and venereal disease.

I realize that this letter will not alter the trend in our society, but hopefully will cause some people to look at this as a step in a direction very few of us really want to go. Now is the time to make our feelings known. Call Assembly Speaker Harold Froehlich and let him know your views.

Make Plans for 1970 Elections

Both Parties Study 'What Went Wrong'

By HARRY KELLY
WASHINGTON (AP) — Around a conference table in a Capitol Hill hotel, Republican campaign strategists threw questions at 10 losers, trying to learn how to win.

The what-went-wrong brain storming session with a sampling of GOP congressional candidates and campaign managers who lost close 1968 races is part of—as one source put it—"the soul searching" and retooling in both the Republican and Democratic congressional campaign organizations.

With Richard M. Nixon barely settled in the White House, Capitol Hill's cool professionals have evaluated their 1968 election wins and losses and are already making special plans—with record budgets—for the 1970 congressional elections.

As a measure of the activity in the two campaign committees:

—House Democrats, after reported complaints of cronyism, inefficiency and campaign funds arriving too little and too late, agreed to beef up a campaign committee considered badly outmaneuvered by the Republicans. They have given the committee chairman, 82-year-old Michael Kirwan, two assistant chairmen.

—Republicans intend to boost their campaign committee's budget to more than $5 million for 1970 from what they said was $3.8 million in 1968. "This will be an all-time high for us," said an aide.

—The House Democrats, after a series of meetings that included National Chairman Fred Harris, senator from Oklahoma, say they don't expect any help from the national committee because of the hefty $6 million debt left by the Hubert H. Humphrey presidential campaign. They have set up a special committee to find new ways and means of campaign financing.

Hunt for Funds

—Republicans hope to involve President Nixon in a 1970 hunt for campaign funds and winning candidates. They also plan to put a team of young congressmen on the road to emphasize a youth image.

Republicans, already a minority in House and Senate, are more worried about 1970 than the Democrats. They are haunted by the off-year boogie—that the party in power in the White House suffers substantial losses in Congress in non-presidential elections. The average for the Republicans since 1900 has been a loss of 41 seats, says Rep. Bob Wilson, chairman of the GOP House Campaign Committee.

"I'm going to try to get the President and cabinet officers to get into the act to get the best crop of candidates we ever have had," said Wilson, an aggressive 52-year-old congressman from San Diego. "We're going to need something like that to buck the tradition."

To help GOP congressmen hang on to their seats, the committee allows vulnerable freshmen and all members from tough or marginal districts $3,500 a year for news letters, advertising, radio-TV time, and other forms of politicking. Other Republicans can draw $2,000.

House Democrats claim they have no such kitty.

The GOP House organization also intends to give more campaign assistance in dollars and staff. An incumbent facing a battle, Wilson says, will be able to draw up to $7,500 in the next election, a $2,500 increase over 1968. Republicans in districts judged safer may get $5,000, up from $3,000.

In addition, says Wilson, the committee is aiming to make the maximum at least $10,000 for any candidate who appears to have a fighting chance to unseat a Democrat.

Comparing the House Democratic organization to the Republican campaign set-up is "like comparing a country crossroads bank to a metropolitan bank in a big city," says one Democrat.

A critic of the Democratic operation recalls: "In the last Congress the campaign committee didn't meet until October 1967, one year before the election. Mike Kerwan told some stories about serving under Roosevelt. Then the speaker (John W. McCormack) got up and told some stories about serving under Hoover and Roosevelt. Everybody had heard the stories before. Then it was moved to have the usual fundraising dinner with the Senate. That's the last meeting we had."

This year the committee is understood to be opening its doors to wider participation by members and looking for ways to raise more money, too.

One source insisted the committee would be lucky to raise one-third as much as the Republican budget, but added:

"We are going to be doing more than we have ever done before. We hope to sharpen our financial operation to improve our political operation. We'll just have to be patient to see if the dollars roll in."

Hopalong's Sidekick 'Gabby' Hayes, Dies

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — At the age of 23, a veteran of burlesque and vaudeville, George Hayes began making his living as a jabbering old man.

The living was good for Hayes, who became known to millions over the next 59 years as "Gabby" Hayes, sidekick to cowboy stars.

"Yer durn tootin'" was his reply to Bill Boyd, the Hopalong Cassidy of Western movies during the 1940s, and to Roy Rogers, Gene Autry and others.

Hayes, grizzled and gravel-voiced to the end, died of a heart ailment Sunday at St. Joseph Hospital in nearby Burbank. He was 83, a widower since 1957. In 1960 he retired from show business.

Although generations knew

'Gabby' Hayes

him as the bushy-bearded pal of cowboy straight-shooters, kids loved Gabby Hayes alone. His weekend morning television show in the 1950s was a success.

Boyd, in Palm Desert, Calif., expressed great regret at Hayes' passing. "We loved him very much," said Mrs. Boyd.

Hayes was the son of a Wells-ville, N.Y., hotel man who wanted him to join the family business. He ran away from home when he was in the eighth grade and joined a touring repertory company.

He and actress Dorothy Earle married and came to Hollywood together in the early days of talking pictures. Said Hayes: "My wife talked me into it."

In 1939 he was costarred with Boyd in an early Hopalong Cassidy movie and stayed around for dozens of Westerns. His other movies included "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," "The Plainsman" and "The Texas Rangers."

In 1957 his wife died. They had no children.

Makes Eating With FALSE TEETH Up to 35% Easier

Clinical tests prove you can now eat and chew better—make dentures average up to 35% more effective—if you sprinkle a little PASTETH on your plates. PASTETH holds uppers and lowers more firmly so they feel more comfortable. PASTETH is not acid—doesn't sour. No gummy, pasty taste. Helps check "denture odor." Dentures that fit are essential to health. So see your dentist regularly. Get PASTETH at all drug counters.

Steel Import Quotas Nixon-Dirksen Split Due?

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon and his party's Senate leader, Everett M. Dirksen, appear headed toward a split over a proposal to put quotas on steel imports.

Nixon's "free trade" declaration at a Feb. 6 news conference and his failure to mention steel as a special import problem caused Dirksen to reverse his opposition to a bill to impose quotas.

Dirksen said he changed his position because, as a representative of Illinois, a major steel producing state, "I cannot stand aside and permit imports to capture an ever-increasing share of our domestic market."

"Can't Invade U. S."

Dirksen questioned whether voluntary restrictions agreed to by other nations—a procedure which Nixon made it clear he favors—will reduce imports to a satisfactory level.

Kennedy Leads In Race for 1972, Newspaper Says

BOSTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., is at this time considered the "most likely" Democratic presidential nominee in 1972 by almost all Democratic Party leaders, the Christian Science Monitor said Friday.

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine is second, running far behind Kennedy, the Monitor said.

Democratic leaders polled across the United States stressed, however, that their assessment was based on the current situation and that "many things may happen."

To put himself in a position to challenge Kennedy, the Monitor reported, Muskie will have to "make an all-out effort."

Kennedy is considered the most likely nominee in almost all regions, including all Southern states but Florida, South Carolina and Georgia. Muskie is the most likely choice for 1972 in Maine, Florida, South Carolina and Washington. Former Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey was the most likely choice in Colorado, Idaho and Pennsylvania.

bill temporarily to gauge the amount of support for it.

The Senate passed a quota provision for some types of textiles last year but it died in a conference with the House.

It did not act on a similar steel proposal, although the Senate Finance Committee had approved it unanimously.

There were signs, however, that if Nixon comes up with some formula that seems to assure an import reduction, he will get support within the finance committee.

Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., said he approves of the trade course Nixon laid out "but I wonder how long his party will go along with him."

"Mr. Nixon said in the campaign that textiles and steel should get special consideration," Gore said. "It seems to me the President is getting in juxtaposition with some of his campaign statements."

Not Right Approach

Sen. John J. Williams of Delaware, top GOP member of the committee, said he is not at all sure that quotas provide the correct approach to the import problem.

"These quotas are worth millions of dollars to the companies which would benefit automatically from them," he said. "Why not put a tax on these imports and let the government get the benefit of the revenues instead of increasing the profits of the steel companies?"

Sewage Flow Killing Ocean Seaweed Forest

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The flow of treated sewage into the Pacific Ocean may be killing off southern California's seaweed forest, say two California Institute of Technology scientists.

The sewage, they say, apparently supports sea urchins which eat young kelp plants before they have a chance to grow.

'Fine Print' Eliminated in Credit Deals

Federal Reserve Release New Law On Interest Rates

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve Board has issued sweeping regulations requiring businesses to disclose the total interest and service costs charged to customers buying on credit.

The regulations, which go into effect July 1, are designed to prevent gouging on credit purchases by requiring the seller to put in writing exactly how much interest and other charges the customer will have to pay over the cost of the item.

Released in final form Sunday, the regulations were an assignment given the Federal Reserve by Congress last year when it enacted a Consumer Credit Protection Act.

Congress divided enforcement responsibilities among nine federal agencies, with the Federal Trade Commission carrying the heaviest load.

Between now and July 1 the enforcement agencies will attempt to contact all banks, department stores, credit unions, mortgage brokers, credit card plans and other businesses that offer credit to spell out their new duties.

For most, the first reaction will be a rush call to the printers. The basic thrust of the regulations is that in all credit transactions the creditor must make written disclosure of the credit terms.

Fine print is banned in spelling out the information and the key words "finance charge" and "annual percentage rate" are to be printed more conspicuously than surrounding material.

This information will appear, for instance, on the monthly statement department store customers receive when they make revolving charge account purchases.

The regulations also contain tough language aimed at advertisements mentioning the availability of credit.

When an ad in any way describes credit availability in order to promote sales it will have to list fully all pertinent facts, including the annual percentage rate, number of payments, and size of the down payment required.

'Impossible,' Cardinal Says Of Demands

MADISON (AP) — The Daily Cardinal, the University of Wisconsin student newspaper, stated editorially Saturday that the demands of Wisconsin black students are "impossible."

The paper, which has been threatened by the UW Board of Regents with a financial cutoff because of use of alleged obscenities, compared the demands with the French revolt last May.

"When 'be a realist, demand the impossible' was the call-word,"

The editors, while claiming that the university has been touched by racism, attacked the principle of separating the races which they say black students are demanding.

The Cardinal concluded by saying that the "post revolutionary" order must consist of black and white and teacher and student. "This does not appear to be the new order offered by the revolution now facing us at the university."

Band Keeps Playing Despite Fire Upstairs

CHICAGO (AP) — Patrons of a Dixieland nightclub on Chicago's near North Side continued to drink their beer and sing along with the band when fire broke out in an apartment three floors above them.

A few persons went outside to watch the firemen work.

One resident was injured slightly and an estimated $10,000 in damage was caused by the fire early Sunday.

Water dripped through the ceiling of the nightclub and formed large pools on the floor, but the band played on.

Many Fields Give Great Opportunity for Ladies

BY SYLVIA PORTER
Northwestern University's Placement Office recently surveyed the hiring plans of 132 major U. S. corporations and came up with the eye-stopping finding that the companies expect to hire 20 per cent more women graduates this June than last. Many of the companies, stressed Placement Director Frank Endicott, are actively seeking lady engineers, data processors, accountants, mathematicians.

Never has the job outlook been brighter for you, if you are a trained young college woman. Never has the challenge to you been greater to get the education to fill the existing jobs opening up for you. Never has the warning to you been clearer to complete your basic training, to keep your special skills up-to-date, to stay in tune with the working world in which you live.

An obvious reason for the favorable job trend for women is the extremely low unemployment rate among skilled men today. This automatically translates into severe shortages in many jobs categories and opens the way for skilled women workers.

Greatest Opportunities
Another obvious factor is the cumulative impact of the anti-discrimination laws affecting in this field is a woman and a Rights Act of 1964, the Equal Pay Act of 1963.

Where are the most provocative opportunities for the college-trained American woman now? Here is the latest rundown from the Labor Dept.'s Women's Bureau:

— Mathematics: Starting

salaries are among the highest of any field, especially if you have a Master's Degree or a Ph. D. The most promising fields for female mathematicians are jobs in private industry (especially in the computer and aerospace industries); in colleges and universities (teaching or doing basic research) and in the Federal Government. Of special interest to women are the part-time job opportunities in consulting, teaching and programming.

— Pharmacy: Indicative of the trend here is the fact that while women account for only 8 per cent of all U.S. pharmacists, they represent 14 per cent of all pharmacy students. Pharmacy covers much more than filling prescriptions; it may be research, sales, hospital work or a job at a university, government agency or corporation.

1 In 20 Optometrists

— Optometry: Only one in 20 U.S. optometrists is a woman, but the demand for vision specialists is now far outrunning the supply. The requirement is a total of six years of college and specialized optometry school and then an optometrist can go into private practice or work in private industry, a health clinic or the military. Optometry specialties include children's reading problems, industrial optometry, research, contact lenses, vision and highway safety. There are excellent part-time job opportunities.

— Public Relations: Building and improving the image of a corporation, foundation, individual college, trade, profession, government agency, etc., may involve research, writing of speeches, press releases, financial reports. Today, one in four women workers: the Civil Rights Act of 1964, the Equal Pay Act of 1963.

— Engineering: Women hold only a picayune number of the jobs but the opportunities are multiplying in fields ranging from bio-engineering to medical engineering to human engineering. Many scholarships, loans

Conservationists To Consider Aid to Pheasants

GREENVILLE — The Outagamie Conservation Club will view slides of the highlights of the 1968 Indianapolis 500 mile auto races made available by Hollis Pilgreen for their meeting at 8 p.m. today at the Silver Dome hall.

The club will decide if they should continue the pheasant raising program.

The fishermen's party will be at the Darboy Club April 11. The committee is Stub Borchardt, Walley Klein, Norval Bergman, Ed Monroe, Roy Conant, Don Schroeder and Dave Velie.

The directors discussed taking donations from the public as an organization, company or individual for the purchase of feed for the game birds and deer.

— Technical writing: The fields of medicine and aerospace are the most fertile for qualified women technical writers but jobs are everywhere: hospitals, government agencies, universities, pharmaceutical and electronics companies, scientific magazines. Part-time opportunities are plentiful.

Parent Problem May Have Emotional Basis

By George C. Thosteson, M. D.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a member of a large family and we all concur that we have a "problem parent." Embarrassing, but we know that it is a mental disorder. Could you please identify it for us? This parent is 68 (the mother) and incites family friction between us, then retires to a mood of satisfaction. Then awaits the next opportunity to do damage. What can we do. — J.B.C.

There may be medical aspects to this problem, related to arteriosclerosis affecting vessels of the brain. There could, conceivably, be some brain damage from other causes. It is more likely a personality problem, however. For whatever reason, this "problem parent" live by, just as children do, if they cannot establish such rules for themselves.

You say that "we all concur" that the problem exists. Then why not have a family council occur, and it is a pity to let and decide among yourselves to refuse to honor any remark from your "problem parent" that can incite any friction?

Since she is 68, I assume that the other members of the family are by now all adults, or nearly so.

Who is the head of the family? It would seem to me to be high time to lay down the law. Some older folks (although 68 isn't so very old these days) have to be given some rules to live by, just as children do, if they cannot establish such rules for themselves.

Dr. Thosteson

Honoring one's parents is only right — but it means respecting them for what they have done well. It does not mean that it is either right or sensible to let a troublemaker get away with it.

There is, to the best of my knowledge, no particular name for the type of emotional disturbance that is involved here, but it might not be amiss to keep an eye out for any intensification of it that could require hospitalization. Have you talked with the family physician about her?

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a weight problem. I am 11 years old and weigh 160 pounds. What should I do? — M.M.

You do have a problem, don't you?

First: Get your mother to take you to your doctor for a checkup to see whether you have a sluggish thyroid or any other condition that needs medical attention.

Second: Make some rules for yourself. No nibbling (on pop or candy) between meals. Omit all desserts. Never take second helpings of anything.

Third: Get your mother to help you learn which are low-calorie and which are high-calorie foods. Avoid gravies, fried foods, all kinds of fat. Skim milk will give you plenty of calcium but with less fat. Learn to eat vegetables (but no cream sauces on them) instead of so much bread and butter. And no jam or jelly!

Fourth: Ride a bike. Walk. Run. Play games. Do calisthenics. But get a lot of exercise to burn up some of your fat.

Fifth: Don't expect to lose weight in a hurry. It takes time.

Sixth: Don't skip meals. But keep all meals smaller than they used to be.

If you don't learn some of the above rules of weight control now, you will be troubled all your life.

Note to M.C.: Yes, allergy certainly contributes to a great many cases of bronchitis. Not the sole factor, of course, in all.

You can lose weight if you really want to! Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "Lost Secrets of Reducing," tells you how — naturally and with no gimmicks — to you...and your

First Wisconsin Charge Card.

Merchants who honor it, get their money promptly. But you still have "charging" convenience at no cost to you.

Do you know why this is possible?

If you've ever wondered how the "Charge Card system" works, we hope this message will clarify things for you.

Let's say you make a $20.00 purchase with your Charge Card at a participating merchant. No money changes hands. Yet, within a few days, the merchant has the payment credited to his business account. It's paid by the sponsoring Charge Card bank, as soon as he turns in his copy of the sales slip.

Time is on your side.

But you don't pay for at least several weeks. For example, if you make your purchase on the 20th of the month, and your billing date is on the 15th of the following month, you could gain 50 days of free credit. (It's 25 days to your statement date—and you have 25 days beyond that to pay your bill.) If you pay in full, it costs nothing extra. It's like a regular charge account. Except that your Charge Card is honored at more than 13,000 business places in Wisconsin.

The plot thickens.

So—the merchant has been paid—and you have the convenience of "charging" your purchase. But what makes it worthwhile for the sponsoring bank?

Here's what: The Charge Card system takes the merchant out of the credit business—and he's glad to pay something for that. He pays a yearly membership fee of $15.00, which also helps to cover the cost of his supplies and Charge Card imprinter. And he pays a fee of up to 4% of Charge Card sales. In the example we have cited, the merchant's fee to the sponsoring bank would be no more than 80 cents. (4% of $20.00.) And it's a bargain for him, because he's relieved of the time-consuming and costly chores of making out bills, mailing bills and collecting bills.

A tricky question, but a simple answer.

If the merchant can't afford to do all this for 80 cents, how can the bank do it?

Only because the entire procedure is computerized. Without today's sophisticated computer systems, there could be no such thing as a universally accepted Charge Card. And, until a few years ago, there wasn't.

But now there is, and it's available to everyone who qualifies.

An invitation.

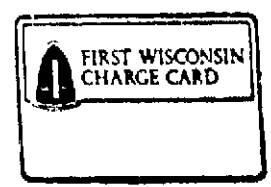

If you've never had a First Wisconsin Charge Card—or if you don't have a current, valid card, apply for one now. It's really the most convenient way of shopping in our modern, mobile society. Ask any participating retailer or sponsoring bank for an application form. Or, just send the coupon and you'll hear from us within a few days.
